BRITISH FLIERS START ACROSS

ALCOCK, IN VICKERS-VIMY BOMBER, HOPS OFF FOR IRELAND

By INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE.

St. John's, N. F., June 14.—Captain Alcock, in his big Vickers-Vimy bombing machine, "hopped off" in an attempt to fly across the Atlantic Ocean, 16:13 Meridian time (about 12:13 Boston time) this afternoon.

The start was made after it had once been abandoned for the day. Early in the day Captain Alcock prepared for the flight, but strong adverse winds caused him to postpone the attempt. It was announced that the start probably would be put off until tomorrow. Shortly before noon, however, the wind veered and the word went forth that the start would be made.

A good sized crowd was on hand to witness the start. The big machine took the air gracefully, and after swinging around over the starting point she headed east across the Atlantic.

Lieutenant W. Brown, R. A. F., Captain Alcock's navigator, was his only passenger. The big machine carried a four pound bag of mail, put abroad at the last moment.

Captain Alcock will win the Daily Mail prize of $50,000 if he accomplishes the flight, as he is flying direct for Ireland. He expects to reach the Irish coast in about twenty hours.

The weather was fine for the attempt. Reports from abroad said that good conditions prevailed all along the course Captain Alcock expects to take.

There was a possibility that the Handley-Page machine might also start on its trans-Atlantic jump before night. Admiral Mark Kerr, its pilot, however, said that it was not likely he would start before tomorrow.

'SUNSHINE NURSE' IN TEARS

Weeps at Letter Referring to Mother; Theft of Gay Jewelry Denied

Lawrence, June 14.—Mrs. Bessie May (Skeels) Lundgren, the "Sunshine Nurse," accused of the murder of Forence W. Gay, broke down today, for the second time since the beginning of the trial, and cried bitterly when her mother's name was mentioned.

Although she presented a picture of physical health in comparison with her ghostly appearance when the trial began, she was evidently in a highly emotional state, for there was another flood of tears when a letter written by her was read on the stand by a government witness. The letter was the one in which she defended herself from the charge of pilfering valuables in the Gay home.

Having recovered quickly from the weeping fit the pale nurse regained complete composure and for the rest of the day followed the proceedings with lively interest and at times a faint trace of amusement.

and fearing death was near. Mrs. effective in moving Mrs. Lundgren to tears was the one in which she referred to her mother "as very low," and fearing death was near Mrs. Lundgren lay back on her pillow and closed her eyes while it was read.

The part of the letter in which Mrs. Lundgren protested her innocence of the theft of jewelry and clothing from the day home was followed with intense interest by the spectators.

"I never was told that any jewelry ex-

FINED $50 FOR CRASH ON HARVARD BRIDGE

Charles P. Garland of Saco, Me., who was arrested after a collision on Harvard bridge, for operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, was found guilty in the Cambridge District Court and was fined $50, which he paid. Two men were injured, a horse frightened into a runaway through crowded streets, and an automobile and milk wagon were wrecked when the collision occurred. Besides Garland the driver, who is thirty-four years old, the automobile was also used by his brother James, thirty, both of them Yale graduates of 1910, for Harvard commencement exercises.

ELEVATOR TIPPED; CLERK BADLY HURT

Walter F. Lord of Moultrie street, Dorchester, a shipping clerk at the Hickney & Peer factory in Charlestown, was painfully injured when a freight elevator on which he was riding caught on a projection, tipping the car and dropping him 35 feet to the bottom of the well. At the Relief Hospital he was found to be suffering from a fractured right shoulder and minor injuries.

CAR STRIKE CRIPPLES SERVICE

Five Hundred Quit Boston & Worcester Line; Rhode Island Strike Vote

Service was tied up on all lines of the Boston & Worcester railway system today by a strike of 500 employes, and the entire trolley system of Rhode Island, except the Fall River-Newport division, is threatened by a general strike of 2,300 motormen and conductors.

A strike vote, which was started in Rhode Island today, gave early indication of resulting in the affirmative.

The Boston & Worcester trolley strike caught thousands of workmen and other patrons along the line unprepared. With many it was a case of walk or lose a day's pay.

STRIKE A SURPRISE TO TOWNS.

The strike order was a surprise to all but the union and company officials, as the public had thought the long-standing dispute was being settled peaceably. The strikers seek higher wages, which they allege they are entitled to under a ruling by the War Labor Board.

The road has two divisions, the main division or the Boston to Worcester route, and the Marlboro division or the Framingham to Hudson route. Towns between Boston and Worcester which were hit by the strike order were Shrewsbury, Westboro, Southboro, Framingham, Natick, Wellesley, the Newtons and Chestnut Hill.

The strikers include not only motormen and conductors, but sub-station employes, power house men, car repairers and trackwalkers.

MAY NOT DEDUCT GIFTS TO CHARITY

Corporations making contributions to charitable, scientific, religious or educational organizations will not be permitted to deduct these contributions from their income returns in making out their income tax returns, according to an opinion handed down by the United States Attorney-General.

This opinion upholds the regulation of the office of Internal Revenue Collector Malley, which reads, "Corporations may deduct dividends received from other corporations subject to the tax and may not deduct charitable contributions." A penalty of 50 per cent of the tax for filing false or fraudulent returns will be incurred by corporations who knowingly deduct contributions in violation of regulations.

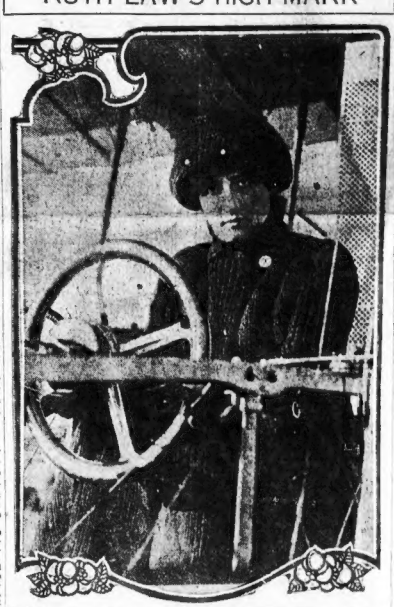
BARONESS LA ROCHE BEATS RUTH LAW'S HIGH MARK



This photograph by the International Film Service shows the baroness seated in the small biplane with which she soared 11,000 feet higher than the record made by Ruth Law, the American.

Paris, June 14.—With her new achievement of soaring to a height of 18,700 feet, the Baroness de la Roche, noted French woman flyer, bears the palm for the women's altitude record away from Miss Ruth Law, the American flyer.

The Baroness drove the small biplane in which the late Jules Vedrine last January landed on the roof of a department store in this city. Reports of Mme de la Roche's flight were checked up by the French Aero Club, which formally recognized her as holder of the title.

Miss Law's record is 15,500 feet, made at Peoria, Ill., in September, 1917, in a machine made for "stunt" flying and not for climbing.

GOVERNOR LISTER OF WASHINGTON DEAD

Seattle, Wash., June 14.—Ernest Lister, twenty-second Governor of Washington, died at 8:30 a. m. today at the Swedish Hospital, where he had been a patient for several weeks. He had been ill for nearly a year. His trouble was diagnosed as cardiac-vascular-renal disease, which affects both heart and kidneys.

DIVERT MANCHURIA TO NEWPORT NEWS

The Manchuria, loaded with Southern troops, which was expected to arrive at Boston Thursday, has been diverted to Newport News, according to a statement given out at army headquarters. This is the second time this boat has been diverted from this port.

5 KILLED, 42 HURT IN RIOTS AT GENOA

Rome, June 14.—Five persons were killed and forty-two injured in strike riots at Genoa, according to advices from that city today. The Epoca urges that all possible haste be made in securing peace, so that numerous strikes throughout Italy can be adjusted.

WIFE PAYS FINE OF PROFANE HUSBAND

Carl Nelson, Maverick street, East Boston, who is alleged to have expressed a very strong desire, in profane language, that the ferryboat John H Sullivan, which was leaving her dock to go down to meet the transport Calamares, would not return, was fined $5 in East Boston Court, and his wife paid the fine. The charge was using profane language. Several persons attempted to get at Nelson, but were prevented by Thomas Lawson, a longshoreman, who acted as a body guard for him.

FOUR INJURED IN REAR-END AUTO COLLISION

Two Women Disappear After Crash on Nahant Road; One Driver in Custody

Four men were injured, two seriously, and the others shaken up, in an auto collision on Nahant road early today, when the side touring car of William Spencer of No. 45 North Centre street, Peabody, crashed into the rear of the machine of Thomas Shinsky of Pearl street, Boston, which had stopped in the roadway. The impact hurled the Shinsky car and its occupants fifty feet along the embankment.

The injured taken to Lynn Hospital were:

Howard Phelan of No. 218 North street, Salem; internal injuries, cuts and bruises.

Both men were passengers in the Spencer car.

Joseph Daley of East Boston dislocated elbow and shoulder.

John Collins of Charlestown, severely cut and shaken up.

According to theory told by the injured men, the Spencer car was coming rapidly from Nahant. The Shinsky car had stopped at the roadside midway between Nahant and Lynn, while the occupants were putting on their coats. There were five men and two women in the auto party.

Before the Spencer car could be gotten under control it had crashed into the other car, hurling the occupants of both cars in all directions.

Spencer was arrested by Motorcycle Officer Parr, when charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He was removed to Lynn police headquarters where he remained all night until bail was furnished.

He will appear in the Salem courts on next Thursday.

Constantinople to Remain in Hands of Turks

Paris, June 14.—The peace conference has decided to allow the Turks to retain Constantinople, according to Pierre Loti, famous writer and student of Ottoman affairs. M. Loti accuses the system of burning the houses of sixty thousand Mussulmans in order to reduce the Turkish population and also setting on fire a portion of the palace formerly occupied by the Sultan in Constantinople.

SAFE IN THEATRE IS ROBBED OF $500

Thieves breaking into a theatre in Central Square, Cambridge, robbed the safe of $500 in cash. The theft, reported to the Cambridge police by Manager Samuel C. Brack, was effected by filing the hinges from an old-fashioned safe, and forcing an inner door of the safe with a jimmy.

INDIANA BANKER SLAIN BY BANDIT

Gary, Ind., June 14.—Cashier Herman Teuscher of the First National Bank of Tolleston, near here, was shot and killed by one of five fashionably dressed bandits who entered the bank today and demanded money. Assistant Cashier C. E. Phillips was shot in the leg. The bandits fled in an automobile without obtaining any money.

GOVERNMENT OF GERMANY WILL NOT SIGN

Copenhagen, June 14.—Official announcement was made in Berlin today that the German government would not accept the peace terms, even in modified form, and that the decision is now up to the national assembly, said a dispatch from the German capital. The idea of holding a national plebiscite to allow the people to vote on acceptance or rejection of the terms has been abandoned.

London, June 14.—The industrial situation in France is becoming graver and there are rumors that a military dictatorship will be declared, said a Paris dispatch to the Manchester Guardian today. The French extremists are prepared to go to any

B. & W. CAR WORKERS WIN DEMAND

The Boston & Worcester Street Railway strike was settled today in accordance with the strikers' demands after 500 employes had been out 13 hours. The strikers received word at Framingham today from the National War Labor Board at Washington of an award of 47 cents an hour, the board abiding by its 1918 wage decision from which the road had appealed. Strikers began returning to duty. Service was resumed. Treasurer Arthur E. Stone of the company said service would be normal in a few hours.

Clemenceau Near Fall as Premier of France, Is Belief in Berlin

Exclusive Cable to the International News Service From the London Daily Express.

Berlin, June 13, via London, June 14.

The overthrow of Premier Clemenceau of France is considered a matter of but a few days, according to belief expressed here today.

German and Italian strikes are strengthening the sentiment of the National Assembly against signing the treaty.

Emil Barth, one of the independent Socialist leaders, declared today that the Cabinet and the National Assembly would refuse to sanction the signing of the treaty and would "then await the enemy's first step."

"We are passive in the west, but active on our eastern frontier against the Poles," Barth said. "All of the peasantry have been armed for this purpose, and numerous troops have been posted at various points. A National uprising in the eastern part of the country is inevitable.

"If the government resigns the independent Socialists and the communists will form a government and send delegates to Versailles to sign a pledge for the fulfillment of all of the terms of the treaty."

Prince Max of Baden, former chancellor, in another article in the Berliner Tageblatt, asserts that "a real William peace" must be obtained.

The people's opposition to the Versailles conference is sufficiently strong to force a revision of the terms, Prince Max argues.

"We must submit to sufferings for a short time before we sign such a document," said Prince Max.

Allies Will Apply Stern Methods at Once if Germans Do Not Sign

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
Correspondent of the International News Service.

Paris, June 14.—When the reply of the allied and associated powers to Germany's counter peace proposals is handed to Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, head of the German peace delegation, on Monday, the outstanding factor will be the emphatic declaration of unanimity among Germany's enemies.

Unless Germany accepts the consequences the terms will be carried out with the sternest possible "iron hand."

All efforts of the Germans to create discord among the allied plenipotentiaries have been practically defeated, it was declared today in official circles.

Premier Lloyd George of England, who for a while opposed some of the suggestions of the Americans and French, has finally come to a complete agreement with his colleagues.

Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau will leave for Weimar as soon as he receives the reiterated reply.

The chief German envoy will hold a conference with government officials at Weimar on the time limit imposed on Germany will include the necessary three days abrogating the armistice, making it possible for the immediate resumption of hostilities in the event Germany rejects the treaty.

The only chance that Germany has of securing additional time beyond the five days decided upon is in the event that government changes are decided upon. If military changes occur, however, the officials in control must give their pledge that the agreements by the present German cabinet will accept the terms.

It is understood that Premier Clemenceau has given his say on his proposals regarding the left bank of the Rhine, which he was urging for the safeguarding of the future of France's Eastern frontier.

The Poles are extremely dissatisfied with the decision to hold a plebiscite in Upper Silesia. However, the Big Five are understood to be unanimous on this point.

100,000 AT BIG PROTEST ON 'DRY' LAW

By International News Service.

Washington, June 14.—Labor and the anti-prohibitionists allied themselves for an offensive today upon the Capitol.

Plans were completed by labor leaders and those opposing prohibition for a great demonstration on the steps of the Capitol in favor of the repeal of the war-time prohibition in so much as it affects beer and light wines. According to those organizing the demonstration, 100,000 men were to march upon the Capitol this afternoon to demonstrate to Congress their opposition to prohibition.

From every section of the country delegates arrived today to join in the protest. A special train arrived from Atlantic City with a delegation of 300 from the convention of the American Federation of Labor. Washington labor unions formed in bodies to join the march. Each train arriving at the Union station brought delegations.

CONGRESSMEN INVITED.

Members of Congress were personally visited and invited to be on the Capitol steps at two o'clock and be shown what labor thinks of prohibition of beer and light wines.

Delegations from many States sought out their Representatives in the office buildings and committee rooms and urged them to use their influence in bringing about the repeal of war time prohibition.

Official recognition was promised the demonstrators. Senator Nelson, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, in charge of this anti-beer legislation, notified the leaders that he had appointed a sub-committee of six Senators who would hear the protests of the delegation.

DISPLAY AMERICAN FLAG.

Chairman Volstead of the House Judiciary Committee was also invited to view the demonstration but labor leaders have had several hearings before that committee, and it is not expected that the committee will be called to hear additional evidence.

Eager for Decision on Legality of Brewing Over One-Half of 1 P. C. Beer

By International News Service.

Washington, June 14.—The Department of Justice is anxious to obtain as early as possible, officials said today, a final decision on the legality of brewing beer containing more than one-half of one per cent. alcohol. This is the reason, it was explained, for the indictment recently returned against the Standard Brewery, Incorporated, at Baltimore, alleging the production of 25 barrels of beer containing more than one-half of one per cent. alcohol for beverage purposes.

Officials at the Department today pointed out that the test case recently decided in New Jersey, in which the brewers were successful, does not satisfy the department as the action was prosecuted and decided by injunction process, and there was doubt here that this procedure will be upheld by the Supreme Court.

While awaiting action on the appeal taken in this case the department decided to bring another test case by indictment. It was upon recommendation of Attorney-General Palmer that the Baltimore indictment was returned. If legal technicalities develop in this case, Department of Justice officials intimated that other cases may be speedily brought along other lines, so that the question may be fully decided before the nation-wide prohibition laws go into effect.

"Old Glory" is 142 years old today. Flag Day was observed in Boston with appropriate exercises. The war-scarred flags carried by the Yankee Division in France were accepted on behalf of the State by Governor Coolidge at impressive exercises at the State House.

Governor Coolidge, in accepting the flags, paid tribute to the valor and the achievements of the Massachusetts regiments.

"You are bringing here the flags carried with so much credit to yourself and your country and always to victory," he said. "In this Hall of Flags these flags will serve to recall a great period of history. They will be a memento of this day and an earnest of the history of the days to come. I accept them in behalf of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and as they remain here in the future they will testify to the loyalty and devotion of her sons."

In the Hall of Flags hundreds gathered to witness the ceremony.

When the colors of the 104th Infantry, decorated at Apremont, were turned over to the State by Lieutenant-Colonel Fiorie thunderous applause echoed throughout the hall. The colors of the 101st Artillery were cheered, and the presence in the delegation of Lieutenant Felix Knauth, who hobbled along on crutches, recalling visibly the wounds received made by the men of the Y. D. Lieutenant Knauth is not yet fully recovered from the effects of a shell wound in the leg which he received at Chateau Thierry.

NOTABLES PRESENT.

Mrs. Coolidge, wife of Governor Coolidge, stood at his right as he received from the commanding officer of each unit the colors borne by two color sergeants while about him were grouped members of his staff.

Brigadier-General John H. Sherburne, commander of the 51st Artillery, also had a place beside the Governor, but did not appear in uniform. Colonel Thomas A. Darroll was in command of the various units.

The colors were presented to the Governor turned over to Sergeant-at-Arms Pedrick and carried from the hall by veterans of the Civil War and the Spanish war in the sergeant-at-arms' department. The ceremonies were concluded when the colors of all the regiments were borne in review before the Governor and staff before finding a place in the historic hall of flags.

THESE FLAGS ACCEPTED.

The regimental units whose flags were accepted today were:

1—55th Coast Artillery Corps.
2—101st Coast Artillery Corps.
2—101st Engineers.
4—101st Field Signal Battalion.
5—101st Machine Gun Battalion.
6—101st Infantry.
7—104th Infantry.
8—101st Field Artillery.
9—102d Field Artillery.
10—101st Ammunition Train.
11—101st Sanitary Train.
12—55th Machine Gun Battalion.
13—52d Field Artillery.
14—301st Infantry.
15—302d Infantry.
16—301st Field Signal Battalion.
17—54th Pioneer.
18—218th Cavalry.
19—74th Infantry.
20—33rd Coast Artillery Corps.

Boston Light Infantry conducted exercises on the Common as in past years. The principal speakers were Governor Coolidge, Mayor Peters and Admiral Dunn. The Governor was escorted from the State House by members of the lodge who served in the recent world-war.

An artillery salute opened the exercises. Then came a band concert. P. F. McCarron, secretary of the lodge, recited the Elks' tribute to the flag. Patriotic songs were sung by Miss Louise Bradarros. Community singing and a cornet solo by Gustav Heim of Boston Symphony Orchestra were other features of the program.

istol in the day family," ran the letter, "except that Mrs. Carter once showed me some antique jewelry one day when the bank box had been brought in the house.

"I never knew Mrs. Gay had a diamond ring until Mr. Gay told me. He was I who told Mrs. Luce that there was jewelry in the drawer of the desk."

Burton S. Flagg, administrator of the estate of Florence Gay, resumed his interrupted testimony at the opening of the morning session.

Cross-examined by Attorney-General Atwill:

Q—Do you recall Mrs. Luce being appointed executrix of the estate of Miss Gay. A.—Yes, it was at my suggestion.

RECEIPT OF BONDS.

Q—You enumerated some securities received from the estate of Miss Gay. A.—They came from the attorney of Charles W. Gay, in registered mail. I also received a refund on the taxes borne by two color sergeants from the Andover Savings Bank, and later received four $100 bonds from the same bank. May I add—

Here the witness was interrupted by Attorney-General Atwill, who said, "Now, if you will just answer my question we'll get along famously. I'm always bothered by witnesses thinking I'm stupid."

Judge Thayer jestingly interrupted to remark, "Why limit it to witnesses."

The witness testified that as administrator he had paid to Mrs. Steele a check for $100 and another for $101 for her services from Nov. 1, 1917, to Feb. 10, 1918, at the rate of $15 a week.

Cross examining Miss Gay's desk I found a note dated 1915 for $200, signed by Charles W. Gay and payable to Miss Gay. This had not been collected," witness added.

Q—When did you first meet Charles W. Gay. A.—The night before Miss Gay's funeral I met him at Miss Gay's house.

NOTICED GAY WAS NERVOUS.

Q—What did you notice about his physical condition. A—I didn't note it then. I asked him to be a bearer at Miss Gay's funeral. Later in my office I noticed his nervousness, his lack of control and the effect of sleeplessness.

Cross examination began by Attorney Daley.

Q—Did you know Charles W. Gay before the funeral? A—I never did.

Q—You knew there was a Mr. Gay, the husband of Rosamond Gay. A.—Yes.

Q—There was a petition filed in court for the appointment of Charles W. Gay as administrator. A.—I think there was.

Q—Do you know when your name was substituted for that of Charles W. Gay. A.—I don't remember.

Q—Did you know that Mrs. Gay objected to the appointment of Charles as administrator. A.—I didn't know that.

Q—Did you know that Charles W. Gay was indebted to Florence Gay until the note was found in the desk. A.—I did not.

U. S. AVIATORS SUPREME IN WORLD WAR

Bagged Two Enemy Ships for Every One Lost, Says General March

By International News Service.

Washington, June 14.—The superiority of the American airmen during the world war was revealed in figures made public today by General P. C. March, chief of staff, at his weekly conference with representatives of the press. American flyers on the western front accounted for practically two enemy machines for every one lost, bagging 725 enemy planes and 71 balloons, to 357 planes and 43 balloons lost to the Germans.

These figures, General March emphasized, represented actual known losses. He explained that many German machines were seen to fall in flames behind the enemy lines following combats, but these were not included in the list because there was a possibility that they were damaged only to such an extent that they could be repaired and put back into service.

"These figures," the general repeated, "shows what we know actually to have been destroyed by our airmen."

COL. STRONG HEADS RED CROSS HEALTH BUREAU

Colonel Richard P. Strong of the United States Army Medical Corps and professor of tropical medicine at Harvard University, has been appointed acting director of the Bureau of Hygiene and Public Health of the League of Red Cross Societies, W. Frank Persons of New York, formerly director-general of the Department of Civilian Relief of the American Red Cross, has been appointed director of development of the league and acting assistant to Lieutenant-General David Henderson, director-general of the league.

These appointments were announced by Director-General Henderson. Colonel Strong is probably the foremost authority in the world on tropical diseases.

SIX BURGLARS GET HEAVY JAIL SENTENCES

Northampton, June 14.—State prison sentences were imposed on six burglars arrested some weeks ago in Lee and who were operating by means of an automobile, when the cases came to a close in superior Court here.

John Walker and John Durkin of Providence, R. I. and Edward Russell of Boston, were sentenced to not more than seven nor less than five years. Roland Sills of New Bedford, Louis Fein of Brooklyn and Arthur Sheller of Pasadena, Cal., were sentenced to not more than ten nor less than seven years. The men were arrested for burglarizing stores in Belchertown.

ROBBERS GET $4,000 IN RED PEPPER HOLDUP

Detroit, Mich., June 14—Two paymasters of the Transcit Schmidt & Sons Leather Company were robbed of $4,000 by two men as they walked from the bank with a satchel carrying the money. The robbers threw red pepper into the faces of their victims, grabbed the satchel of money and separated, each jumping into an auto and driving in an opposite direction.

First Wife Helps Second Wife to Obtain Divorce

Worcester, June 14.—Thanks to the efforts of one of the several wives of James W. Treat, polygamist, who is sojourning in the Worcester jail, another of his several wives, Margaret Anne Treat, secured a divorce from him. The wife who helped secure the divorce for Margaret Anne was formerly a Miss Cooper. Sheriff Richardson testified that Treat treated himself to several wives, he didn't know just how many, but there were three or four libels served on him when he was convicted of polygamy.

FEEL SURE IRISH FUND WILL GO OVER

New York, June 14—The Friends of Irish Freedom announced that more than $100,000 of the metropolitan quota of $150,000 in the Victory Fund has been collected. National officers are satisfied the $2,000,000 total for the country will be assured.

the strike from Framingham. His contention is that last Winter the War Labor Board ordered that the employes get a flat wage of 47 cents an hour and this order has been ignored. The officials of the company maintain that this was only a "tentative" order.

DECISION ONLY "TENTATIVE."

Arthur Stone of Framingham, treasurer of the company, declared that this "tentative" decision was made without sufficient evidence being introduced, and the War Labor Board finally postponed action, but the employes assumed that a binding decision had been reached. His last information was to the effect that the board would make a real decision on June 24.

Despatches from Providence today said that the strike vote of 2300 motormen and conductors employed by the Rhode Island Company, which controls the State's trolley system, would be completed by midnight, with prospect that a strike would be voted.

In that case the men will leave the strike arrangements in the hands of Business Agent James H. Coleman, President John T. Burns and Secretary Chris Daniels of the street car men's union. Business Agent Coleman said:

"In the event of a strike vote, which now seems certain, due notice will be given the traveling public. The public will get a square deal and due notice will be given. The men are not receiving a wage high enough to live against the high cost of living."

DEMAND WAGE INCREASE.

The street car men were receiving 34 and 37 cents an hour up to the time when the War Labor Board allowed them 43, 45 and 48 cents an hour, and an agreement on this basis was entered into between the Rhode Island Company and the Amalgamated Association of street Car and Electric Railroad Employes of America. This agreement expired May 31 last, when the men made demands for increased wages.

Frank H. Swan, Theodore Francis Green and Zenas W. Bliss, receivers of the Rhode Island Company, refused to grant the demanded increase, pointing out that the road was in no financial position to raise wages. The receivers refused to have the dispute go to arbitration, but offered to continue their wages at the figures set by the War Labor Board.

Three weeks ago the men took a strike vote in which about eighty-five per cent voted to strike, but since then and with the refusal of the receivers to arbitrate the demand for a strike has been more general.

The rumor that women and returned service men would be employed to man the cars was flouted today. President A. E. Pepper of the company would not discuss the matter.

Trade Union Leader Quits

Exclusive Cable to the International News Service from the London Daily Express.

London, June 14.—Secretary Appleton of the Trade Union Federation resigned today.

NAVY PLANNED FLIGHT OVER PACIFIC

By International News Service.

Washington, June 14.—A trans-Pacific aeroplane flight was to have been attempted by the Navy Department, but will be impossible because of the action of the House in cutting down, in the naval appropriation bill, the amount for aeronautics from the $45,000,000 requested to $15,000,000.

This was revealed today by Secretary Daniels in discussing the effect the slashing of the appropriation would have upon aeronautics in the department.

"We won't be able to fly across the Pacific this year," was the Secretary's comment. He refused to reveal, however, to what extent plans for such a flight had been developed, or when the attempt was to have been made.

The secretary expressed keen disappointment that the appropriation for the air program had been cut to one-third of the amount asked.

"We will do the best we can," he added, "but our position will be something like that of the well-known young lady who asked: 'Mother, may I go out to swim?'"

The secretary pointed to the fact that America had led from the very beginning of air navigation, and that foreign powers were appropriating vast sums for the work. He expressed the hope that when the appropriation bill reaches the Senate it will be increased. However, this would necessitate sending the measure back to conference with little possibility that it then could be enacted before July 1, the beginning of the fiscal year.

Secretary Daniels also disclosed that it was the plan of the department to build one tremendous lighter than air machine in this country and to purchase another one abroad. This would entail an expenditure of some $4,000,000. It was stated, and with the appropriation that would be available the department would be forced to abandon this plan.

CHAPMAN, SLAIN WESTBORO RECLUSE, SEEN ALIVE MONDAY MORNING

TENDS TO ELIMINATE BAKERS

But Couple Is Still Sought, as They May Throw Some Light on Murder Mystery

Westboro, June 14—Mrs. Anna Parker, living in the rear of the Town Hall, told the police today that Dwight P. Chapman, the aged man who was found murdered in his bed Wednesday morning, met her on the street Monday morning, toward noon, and engaged a few minutes in conversation.

This information tends to eliminate from the case the couple known as Mr. and Mrs. Harry Baker, who have been sought by the police and who are supposed to have gone to Portland, Me.

The Bakers left here at 8 o'clock Monday morning. Up to today the police had received no report of Chapman having been seen alive since last Sunday night. Mrs. Parker's statement of meeting Chapman and having a bill changed late Monday morning places the victim alive after the time the Bakers left the town.

STILL SEEK BAKERS.

The police are still anxious to locate the Bakers for any information they may be able to give.

It has been learned by the police that Chapman had a number of women acquaintances and entertained them frequently. These women were not residents of Westboro, but where they came from is not known. No one has seen any women at his home lately.

Chapman was seventy-four years old, while some of his women friends were younger. The women of Westboro fought shy of the old man because his appearance did not attract them.

GOES TO PORTLAND.

Chief Johnson went to Portland with Miss May Falby, a waitress, who attended the Bakers while they were in Westboro, and Vincent P. Meigs, assistant superintendent of the Lyman School for Boys. Meigs saw the couple when they applied at the school for positions as attendance officers.

The authorities traced the trunk to Portland, where they arrived Monday evening. They were given to an expressman who supplied it to be delivered to the Bakers and delivered. The expressman said he knew who has a regular stand at the depot, and the authorities find it difficult to locate him. It is possible he sold the trunk to the Grand Trunk depot and checked it to some Canadian city.

SAYS MINISTER TAUGHT HER TO SMOKE AND DRINK

Mrs. J. M. Neifert, seeking freedom from minister, charges that Miss Caroline Cooper, pretty nurse, "caused all the trouble." Photo by International Film Service.

New York, June 14.—The married life of Rev. Josiah Martyn Neifert and his wife seems to have been stranded on a series of "ifs," according to the testimony in the Supreme Court, in the suit for divorce brought by Mrs. Neifert against her husband.

In answer to the suit, Rev. Neifert, who is rector of St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church at Prospect Ter., declared his wife was addicted to the three C's, "cigarettes, cocktails and cards."

Mrs. Neifert counter-attacked by saying that the real "C" in the case was Miss Caroline Cooper of Danbury, Ct., the pretty nurse whom she asserts her daughter was lured to by Rev. Neifert.

"Is it not a fact that you smoke cigarettes?" asked L. F. Tompkins, attorney for Rev. Neifert.

SAYS HE TAUGHT HER.

"Occasionally," replied Mrs. Neifert, "it was he who taught me how to smoke them."

"Do you take cocktails?" asked the lawyer.

"Very rarely," replied the minister's wife, "and Dr. Neifert introduced me to them also."

"Don't you play cards?"

"Indeed, yes," she replied.

"Isn't it a fact that your husband seriously objected to these three "c's"—cigarettes, cocktails and cards?" pressed the lawyer.

"Nonsense," she replied. "The biggest 'C' of all that caused all the trouble was Carrie Cooper, the nurse who came to take care of Dr. Neifert when he had rheumatism."

DEPENDS DAUGHTER.

Mrs. Cooper, aged mother of the nurse accused by the minister's wife, took the stand following Mrs. Neifert.

"Carrie is a darling girl," the tottering old woman said. "The accusations Mrs. Neifert makes with Dr. Neifert are untrue," she declared.

The children of Dr. Neifert, Josiah, Marion, and Mortimer, who lived with their father for many months after Mrs. Neifert left, also was compelled by shame to leave her husband, told on the witness stand of many love passages they had heard took place in their presence between the minister and the nurse.

Later, they said, occupied a room especially fitted up for her in the home.

SAYS MOTHER TAUGHT DAUGHTER TO STEAL

"When a mother teaches her child to steal and then throws the blame on the child, contrary to all instincts of motherhood, she is a proper case for an example to be made of."

This arraignment of Mrs. Marie Paul was made by Judge Creed today in Municipal Court, when Attorney J. N. Clark sought leniency for her. The mother and her sixteen-year-old daughter, Virginia, were found guilty of stealing $13 worth of articles from a department store. The mother told the judge her daughter had stolen all the articles. The police declared that the mother stole all the things except one. Judge Creed gave her a suspended sentence of four months.

25 PER CENT. OF N. Y. CHILDREN UNDERFED

New York, June 14.—Twenty-five per cent. of the children of New York city are suffering from malnutrition because their parents are unable to earn enough with food at its present prices to furnish them with nutritious edibles, according to an estimate made by Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland today. The commissioner said he based his figures from a recent survey of school children made by his department.

BOLSHEVIK "ENVOY" WANTS PAPERS BACK

By Universal Service.

New York, June 14.—Charles Recht, attorney for L. C. A. K. Martens, "ambassador" of the Bolshevik government to the United States, said today that legal proceedings to compel the return to the soviet bureau of all the papers and books taken by the members of the State constabulary on Thursday in their raid on the offices of the soviet representative would be begun at once.

ASK RULING ON FOOD FOR RHINE REPUBLIC

Paris, June 14.—The Supreme Inter-Allied Economic Council has asked the "Big Four" for a ruling on what policy it should adopt in negotiations for the revictualling of the new German Rhine republic. The Supreme Council does not know whether to continue dealing with the present German government, or the new Rhine authorities. The "Big Four's" reply will determine the attitude of the Allies toward the Rhine republic.

HALF MILLION COST OF WORCESTER GAS STRIKE

Worcester, June 14.—Worcester's gas strike was an expensive one for the general public. Although the city was without gas for one day only, thousands of gas consumers invested in oil stove; chafing dishes and electrical stoves as temporary substitutes for gas. Hotels and restaurants did likewise. The entire bill would probably hit about half a million dollars.

BELIEVE BIG CANADA STRIKE NEARING END

Winnipeg, Man., June 14.—Negotiations for the settlement of the general strike, which is now in its fifth week, were in progress today, and intimations from official sources indicated a prospect of success. Executive officers of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen issued a statement declaring the strike vote taken by Winnipeg locals was unauthorized and that efforts will be made to keep the railroads running.

JUGO-SLAVS AGITATE AGAINST PEACE TREATY

Plume, June 14.—The Croats are holding mass meetings in all their towns, urging the Jugo-Slav peace delegation to refuse to sign a peace sacrificing Slav interests.

The Serbian, Croat and Slavonian Masons have decided to form a united grand Jugo-Slav lodge, with headquarters at Belgrade.

OPERATORS SAY 25,000 ARE OUT ON STRIKE

130,000 Electrical Workers Scheduled to Quit Monday in Sympathy

Chicago, June 14.—Detailed reports from principal cities of the country show approximately 25,000 telegraph operators have gone on strike, according to a statement by S. J. Konenkamp, international president of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union, today. He said the ranks of the strikers had been augmented by 2,000 on Friday.

"This is a cumulative strike," said Konenkamp. "By Monday there will be a quarter or a million, including associated trades involved. It will soon be half a million."

He characterized an interview attributed to Vice-President Reynolds of the Postal Telegraph Company that the strike was over as an effort to stampede. "There is nothing to it except the desire to break the strike," he said. He had received no word that strikers were returning to work, he said.

"The telegraph companies brought some operators in from branch offices to their main offices. These men are mostly women. I do not know of any strikers who have weakened," he said, said.

The next feature of the strike, Konenkamp said, will be the action of 50,000 members of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers in refusing to handle commercial messages. He also said he was satisfied that the 130,000 members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers employed on telephone and telegraph lines will quit work on Monday.

A meeting of the executives of the Western Broker Division of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union was held to plan a strike vote. The division extends from Chicago to San Francisco. It was expected the vote would be taken by wire and the result known next week.

Members of the Western Brokers' Division of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union, at Chicago, voted on the question of joining in the strike of telegraphers. Several days, it is believed, will be required to complete the vote.

Miss O'Connor Orders Telephone Strike on the Pacific Coast

Atlantic City, N. J., June 14—A strike order was issued here today to the telephone operators in charge of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers by Miss Julia S. O'Connor, Boston leader, directing all members of the union on the Pacific coast to walk out on June 18. It is the first order issued to the operators' department of the I. B. E. W. and will affect 9,000 employees of the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. All the male members of the I. B. E. W. will go on strike Monday morning, June 16.

The order was issued at the result of a long conference which Miss O'Connor had with the officers of the I. B. E. W. who are here attending the thirty-third annual convention of the American Federation of Labor. A committee from the federation is in Washington endeavoring to avert the strike.

CANADA'S STAND ON TITLES APPLAUDED

London, June 14—Applauding the decision of the Dominion Parliament petitioning the King to grant no more titles in Canada, the Manchester Guardian says: "Canadian democracy would do well to follow Canada's lead. It is expected that King George will not refuse the petition and will grant Canada's request. Every right-minded man will approve the colonial sentiment against hereditary inequality. The lavish management of the Dominion's resources and the lavish expenditure of taxes money—in rapidly educating British-minded opinion up to the colonial standard."

AIR SERVICE RAISES FOUR BAY STATE MEN

Houlton, Me., June 14.—Four Massachusetts men stationed at Houlton Field, the air service flying school base, have been promoted from commissioned officers. They are: Lowell of Boston; unassigned; H. H. Wilson of Boston, unassigned; Wakefield sergeant first class, H. E. Wakefield of Boston; sergeant first class, West Roxbury, and William Binford, No. 75 Bixby street, Dorchester, sergeant first class.

$25,000 SUIT OVER DEATH BY LIVE WIRE

The Cambridge Electric Lighting Co. has been sued $25,000 by Mrs. Catherine Dunnigan as administratrix of the estate of Patrick J. Dunnigan of Cambridge, who was killed on August 3, 1918, while the deceased was walking on Vine street, East Cambridge, and came in contact with a live wire that was hanging in the street.

FELIX W. McGETTRICK DIES AT 71 YEARS

Felix W. McGettrick, former assistant district attorney under the late John B. Moran, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Frank L. Bowditch, in Wellington Heights. He was 71 years old. Edward F. McGettrick is an assistant corporation counsel for the city.

F. C. CHILDS' ESTATE VALUED AT $50,000

The will of Frank C. Childs of Lexington, who died April 1, 1919, has been allowed. Mrs. Edith J. Childs, his widow, has been appointed executrix and has given a bond of $75,000. The estate is valued at $50,000.

HE'S A 5-FIGURE BURGLAR; HE'S NO 'PIKER'

Youth, Again in New York, Tells of Bank Robbery; "Shoots to Kill"

New York, June 14.—"When I rob I rob—and I kill they also dead."

This startling confession was made to police by Gordon Fawcett Hamby, south side bad boy, who has been back from Tacoma, Wash. He claims to have stolen $100,000 in a few years here and abroad. He is charged with robbing the East Broadway Savings Bank and with killing two persons during the getaway.

The colonel netted Hamby $12,000 in one burglary, he says, but this and he was returned to New York for trial on the same day. Rotten luck, he says, is to be Pippart reference in this incident when he remarked on the coincidence.

Although both robberies and train holdups have netted Hamby $50,000, he is now penniless. He always spent his money as soon as he got it, after a big "job," he explained. His robberies covered two continents, work, he said.

The telegram companies brought some operators in from branch offices to their main offices. These men are mostly women. I do not know of any strikers who have weakened," he said, said.

The next feature of the strike, Konenkamp said, will be the action of 50,000 members of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers in refusing to handle commercial messages. He also said he was satisfied that the 130,000 members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers employed on telephone and telegraph lines will quit work on Monday.

TO PROBE REPORTED PARCEL POST ABUSES

Washington, June 14.—Reported abuses in the parcel post service, its extension and the proposed parcel post rates will be the subject of investigation by a House Post Office Committee, it was stated today. The committee, it was announced, will be authorized by Representative Madden of Illinois, to appoint the Dockman general to investigate the Dockman insurance collected on parcel post packages and the cost of the parcel post service, the number of claims now for losses the number of claims paid, the amount paid and the number of claims pending and the average period required in the settlement of claims.

WARRANT FOR TRUCK DRIVER IS DENIED

Application for a warrant on the charge of manslaughter against Patrick F. Lonnie of Hampshire street, Cambridge, driver of a truck which struck and killed Mrs. Ellen Cahill, wife of No. 19a Exeter street, Cambridge, last night, the last during operation of which Mrs. Cahill suffered injuries, was denied today by Judge Hayden in Municipal Court. Lonnie was arrested after driving with cars at a fire, and was held in $1,000 bail.

After court Lonnian said that he fled the shot, but that he only did it to frighten the man who was getting out more than he used.

ALLEGED FUGITIVE REMANDED TO JAIL

K. K. Sodaki, twenty-three, of this city, was arraigned in the municipal court in that city on Deputy United States Marshal Bancroft on the charge of transporting Marion Smith from New London, Conn., to Boston. TRANSFER WOUNDED FROM PARKER HILL

General Hospital No. 21, U. S. A., with headquarters at 1000 Commonwealth avenue, Brighton, has been made a Reconstruction Hospital, Surgeon General Gorgas announced today. This was caused by the transfer of all soldiers to hospitals at Framingham, Waltham and the Soldiers' Home from the hospital in auto ambulances and touring cars, driven by Red Cross nurses. Entrainment was at Boylston avenue yards. At the West Roxbury branch of the hospital 150 soldiers were taken to the trains.

This Romance Sang Its Way From Altar to Divorce Court

New York, June 14.—Each fundamental phase of his domestic operetta inspired Grant Clarke, popular song writer, to write a ditty expressive of the change. At least this is what Mrs. Garnet Helen Clarke told Justice Giegerich in support of her action for divorce, which is being heard in the Supreme Court.

The first song of the "cycle" was written while Clarke was in Kokomo, Ind., its title was "One in a Million Like You." Along came the "one in a million" in the person of the now Mrs. Clarke. They met, Clarke said, she was "the one," and they were married as the "High C" climax of a forty-five minute courtship.

All went well for two years, said Mrs. Clarke, before serious differences arose. After some sort of a disagreement, the wife says Clarke wrote:

Mrs. Clarke said they separated after this. She told Justice Giegerich that she "understood the significance of every song." And she names a blonde as co-respondent. Here is a fragment of the "Sit Down, You're Rocking the Boat" melody.

"Sit down, sit down, sit down, you're rocking the boat.
If that's the blonde hair doing on your coat?
Don't make a noise, she's gone to bed
It will get us going for your head.
Sit down, sit down, sit down, you're rocking the boat."

The rollicking "Sit Down, You're Rocking the Boat" was still popular when Clarke, according to his wife, realized the seriousness of his domestic situation.

Another inspiration! The thought of his pretty wife leaving him! The result was the touching ballad:

Mrs. Clarke said she gained much comfort from the sentiment expressed in this ballad. But she said the feeling of reconciliation was short-lived, as her husband soon expressed another mood in the lilting, spontaneous song:

The refrain of this song tells how "I love to be among the girls" and how "When it's five o'clock and tea is set, I like to have my tea with some brunette," gradually working up to the climax of "When I'm in swimmin' I love the water."

Followed, according to the wife, a song entitled "There's a Little Bit of Bad in Every Good Little Girl."

Justice Giegerich after hearing of the song cycle and the story of a raid on which it is alleged, revealed Clarke in an embarrassing situation with the unnamed blonde, reserved decision.

ADMITS FIRING SHOT MEANT TO SCARE WIFE

Donovan First Put Grim Question to Her, Declare Relatives

Relatives of George P. Donovan of South Boston, accused of shooting his wife in the shoulder, said today that Donovan put a grim question about Calvary cemetery to his wife just before the shooting.

Mrs. Donovan was in a hammock at their home at No. 871 East Broadway, these relatives said, when Donovan walked over to her and said: "How would you like to go to Calvary cemetery where the boy is?"

This was in allusion to their little son, whose body is in Calvary cemetery, Mrs. Donovan replied: "I wouldn't mind."

Then, according to the relatives, Donovan fired one shot, which struck the wounding his wife in the shoulder and injuring the index finger of his right hand.

Donovan was arrested for assault with intent to murder by Detectives Sergeant Smith Boston Court today and was held in $1,000 bail.

After court Donovan said that he fired the shot, but that he only did it to frighten his wife. He says the gun did not more than he used.

FINAL PERFORMANCE OF "THE JOLLIES" TONIGHT

The final performance of the "Jollies" of 1919 will be given at the Boston Opera House tonight. It will be military night, the ranks of the ushers will be filled by officers of the army and navy, and the boxes will be occupied by the governor's staff and by General Edwards and his staff. Many distinguished guests have reserved seats for the performance, and a large house for the performance are available. The show will run for two nights only, and the receipts will be turned over to the Army and Navy Relief Fund. The following performance will be given at the Boston Theatre.

LOWEST NUMBER OF WEDDINGS IN 4 YEARS

Records at the marriage bureau of city hall show that the number of marriages will have shattered on marriage records for the last four years. The war, high cost of living and various other contributing causes are being blamed for the slump in the couples' line.

For the five months ending May 31, the total of marriages has been 1,675, as against 8,031 for the corresponding months last year; 8,018 in 1917; 8,035 in 1916, and 7,644 in 1915.

Wisconsin Files Its Ratification of Suffrage First

By International News Service.

Washington, June 14.—Wisconsin today won the race for the honor of being the first State to file with the Secretary of State its ratification of the woman's suffrage constitutional amendment. Mrs. James, father of Miss Ada James, the Wisconsin chairman of the National Woman Suffrage Association, received the telegram today ahead of the fifteen minutes allowed for the ratification and was given a check for $1,000 by suffragists of the national capital.

BABY GIRL REVEALS MAE MARSH A BRIDE

New York, June 14—Mae Marsh, screen star, used to proclaim such advanced ideas on matrimony and motherhood that you'd listen to what Miss Marsh said is a reporter just a few short years ago.

"Most people think love and marriage belong exclusively to youth," she declared. "Not so. Love comes to some of them a little later and three fleetingmates mentioned to banter me about my single state. But I haven't reached the fourth of the way through my life, and by the time I'm through I'll have had my share of love affairs."

So when Mae came a certain sporting writer, magazine author and a theatrical producer, Miss Marsh had to quit work. She was married in September in the latter's home, Mamaroneck, and took no one into their confidence until—

A daughter was born to Mrs. Louis Lee Arms, at the Lying-in Hospital yesterday, and the announcement was made today by Marshal Bancroft on the charge of Healthy children gained new strength from the pure food elements of Father John's Medicine.

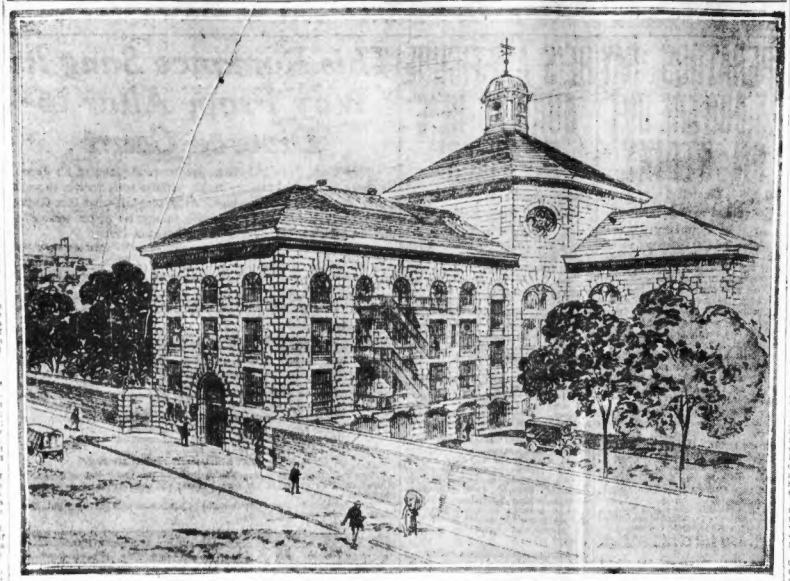
Read this Mother's letter

Father John's Medicine has done wonders for my two children. Years ago my little son was very delicate after having pneumonia. He was always complaining of a pain on his lungs. After taking three bottles of Father John's Medicine he had no more pain. My daughter also had a very weak throat, would have bronchitis every few months. Father John's Medicine relieved her of that. I cannot speak too highly of the medicine." Signed: Mrs. G. Miller, 732 Michigan Ave., Buffalo, N. Y.

Guaranteed free from alcohol or dangerous drugs.

SHERIFF'S PLANS CALL FOR MODERN CHARLES ST. JAIL



Sketch of modern Charles Street Jail when plans already drawn are put into effect. Elimination of the sheriff's house and the building of a four-story granite wing, as shown in the picture, are contemplated. A dining room for inmates is also planned—a real advance in humanitarian work.

Worcester Police Bar Sunday Golf and Tennis

Worcester, June 14.—There will be no Sunday golf or tennis at any of the exclusive country clubs in Worcester hereafter. These sports, which have been "winked at" in the past will be stopped, says Chief George H. Hill, and he promises to have officers at the clubs tomorrow to see that the law is obeyed. This action follows a hearing last night when the views of Worcester people on amateur ball in the public parks were aired. City Solicitor John W. Mawley has given an opinion to Chief Hill, upon the chief's request, stating that golf and tennis are in the same boat with baseball as far as the law is concerned.

MOTOR HOSPITAL WAR TRIUMPH, SAYS MAJOR

One of the greatest developments of the war was the mobile surgical motor hospital, which was originated and successfully operated by the French and copied and improved by the Americans, according to Major John J. Murphy of No. 2192 Massachusetts avenue, North Cambridge, who has just returned from France.

"The mobile surgical hospital not only was the means of saving thousands of lives, but it was also the means of saving many limbs and relieving a great deal of pain and suffering," Major Murphy said. "The mobile surgical hospital was a brand new idea. It was a tested hospital that could go where other hospitals could not go and where the most modern surgical devices were necessary.

"It carried specialized surgery from far back of the lines to almost within range of the guns. Its keynote was to be able to carry the opportunities and facilities of major surgery from behind the lines up to the place where the man was most recently injured."

Major Murphy left the United States on July 8 a year ago with the 76th Division as regimental surgeon in the 304th Infantry. When after reaching France he was detached from his regiment and made commanding officer at Camp Hospital No. 57 at St. Amand. This hospital served the needs of the entire 76th Division, then distributed through the Provision of other. Dr. Murphy remained with this outfit until after the signing of the armistice, when the division was broken up.

Dr. Murphy went through the influenza epidemic at Hospital No. 57, receiving the replacement troops as they arrived from Brest.

After the armistice was signed Major Murphy was sent to Meaux, where there was a hospital centre of about 10,000 beds supervised by about sixteen hospital units. He was there until March 1, during which all the wounded from front line hospitals were brought up.

On March 1 he went to the embarkation centre at Le Mans and was in command of Mobile Hospital No. 7 and remained with this outfit until demobilized at Camp Upton last Sunday.

Major Murphy, who is a Harvard Medical graduate, joined the service May 31, 1917. He was a medical reserve officer in the regular army of the Texas border days. He was one of the first members of the sanitary train to reach Camp Devens.

Plans have been completed for the erection of additions to the Charles Street Jail which will go a long way toward bringing that institution up to the modern level. Sheriff Keliher sees in the offing the end of a fight he has waged almost since the day of his appointment for more improved facilities at the jail.

For the first time in the history of the institution it will have hospital for both male and female inmates and an eating place for prisoners, who have been obliged to eat in their cells.

The new plan calls for the elimination of the sheriff's house and in its place a four-story granite building in which the administrative offices will occupy the first floor, the women's hospital the second, the men's hospital the third and an auditorium the fourth. The auditorium will be used for the men's dining room.

Sheriff Keliher's plans came as a result of a conference with Miss Fl. Adams, former director of prisons. The sketches were made by O. Henri Desmond and approved by Miss Katherine Koren, international prison commissioner, Chaplain Herrick of New Jersey, expert on prisons acting for the Prison Commission, and Mayor Peters. On May 15 a bond issue was authorized calling for the completion of the work. Bids will be advertised shortly, $150,000 being appropriated for the work.

MEMORIAL TREE FOR EACH GEORGETOWN HERO

Washington, June 14.—The feature of the graduation ceremonies at Georgetown University was the dedication of a memorial tree to every one of her sons who died in the war. Bronze markers designed by the American Forestry Association, will bear the names of those dead heroes. Georgetown is the first college in the country to so honor its dead.

WAR VETERANS TO SPEAK IN NEWTON CHURCH

Chaplain Lyman Rollins of the 101st and Captain H. B. Cornerais of the Newton company (Company C) of the 101st will speak in Trinity Church, Newton Centre, on the morning services tomorrow. At this service offerings and subscriptions will be received for a memorial for six soldiers who lost their lives in the war, and an honor roll of all who went into the service from the parish.

The design provides for finishing in oak panelling the rear end of the church, with room for a niche in the base, the panels containing the names of all who served in the war, the central number of the panels having the six names of those who died in battle or of wounds, and gold with carved angels in deep relief above them. Besides being a fitting and beautiful memorial, the work will complete the interior of the church and make some needed additions to the seating capacity.

The cost is estimated by Irving & Casson, the architects, at $3,000. It is hoped that the whole amount will be raised at the morning service by contributions and by subscriptions payable October 1.

SAVED MY LIFE Says Man in Maine

Henry O. Hanley of 17 Cross street, Belfast, Maine, writes us: "I can't tell you better and think your Elixir (Dr. True's Elixir) saved my life."

Dr. True's Elixir is a great medicine, a famous laxative and a stomach regulator. It tones the stomach, moves the bowels and purifies the blood. Why worry it is how many people have worms. Children suffer agony from worms. Signs and symptoms of worms are deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, nose scratching, disturbed sleep, hard and full belly, with occasional grippings and pains about the navel, pale face of leaden tint, sore heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, grating of the teeth, itchy red points sticking out on tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

Write us if you want to. Address Dr. J. F. True & Co., Auburn, Maine.

Get Dr. True's Elixir from your dealer at once. The cost is small. It expels worms and restores health. On the market for over 40 years.

DORCHESTER TO HAVE FLEET OF NEW CARS

Dorchester is to have a fleet of new centre-entrance cars with low steps, according to the announcement made to the Dorchester Board of Trade by Charles J. Leonard, superintendent of Division 1 of the Boston Elevated, when the board made a visit to the car barns at Park street, Field's Corner.

The new cars will operate from the Park street barns to the Dudley street terminal over Dorchester avenue and Boughton street, to the Dudley terminal over Geneva avenue and Meeting House Hill, and to the terminal at Andrew square over Geneva avenue and Meeting House Hill. It is expected that these cars will be ready for use in about three months.

EXTEND SCOUTS' DRIVE TO MONDAY

Boston Common Scene of Big Effort Today to Boost Lagging Campaign

The Boy Scout Recognition Campaign in New England has been extended until Monday night.

Lack of interest in this district in the drive for 1,000,000 associate members in the United States was the cause of the extension of the drive, which had been scheduled to close today.

The campaign today is one of lively and varying features. Thirty thousand people in New England received personal letters from James Jackson Storrow, chairman of the New England division, in which he appeals for the contributions necessary to continue the training of boys for healthy citizenship. Residents of Newton and Brookline were similarly reached by the local committees.

It is on Boston Common today that the spectacular appeal for the one dollar contributions is being made. There at the noonday rally "Babe" Ruth of the Red Sox is acting as the judge in the competition of the Boy Scout bugle corps of Greater Boston for an engraved conductor's baton, under the direction of Frederic L. Reynolds, corps director of the Greater Boston Federation. After the awarding of the prize by the Red Sox pitcher, the boys march in parade through the streets of Boston.

A vaudeville program is also on at the Liberty Court rally. Boy Scouts there are again demonstrating the various phases of scout work, of which there are no less than fifty branches.

Today, Sunday and Monday gives the campaigners three days in which to raise New England's quota of $3,353 associate members at $1 each. The New England committee is confident that the quota will be reached. The quota in Boston is 21,000, and it was announced that subscriptions may be given either to canvassers, left at any Liggett drug store or mailed to Charles G. Bancroft, Jr., treasurer, International Trust Building.

Governor Coolidge, State Treasurer Charles L. Burrill and Mayor Peters became associate members at the previous noonday rally on Boston Common. Joe Mitchell Chapple, author of "Heart Throbs," described a visit to the grave of Quentin Roosevelt, who was himself a Boy Scout.

"Joe" Eagan and Charles Parker of the Boston Y. M. C. U. gave a three-round exhibition boxing match and J. Davis and L. Peregrini furnished a program of band balancing and other athletic stunts under the direction of Professor Hebbard of the Y. M. C. U. Fife's Band played during the program.

The Boy Scouts of Medford, 300 strong, paraded and gave a demonstration of Scout work in Medford Square. This will again be on Monday night at the Medford Theatre.

WINTHROP PLANS LIVELY WELCOME FOR HEROES

Chairman Harry C. Whor has completed arrangements for the pageant which will be a portion of the Winthrop July 4 celebration in honor of the return of the town's sons and daughters from the war. A leading part in the pageant has been assigned to Miss Maud Murray.

There will be five hundred people in the pageant which will be held at Fort Banks, Winthrop. The celebration starts on the evening of July 3 with water carnival and open house at yacht clubs, followed by bonfire at midnight and 19 minutes' noise and racket with bell-ringing. The military and civic parade in five divisions will occur July 4th morning with sports and athletic events in the afternoon. All events are free.

MARINES TO CLOSE RECRUIT DRIVE JUNE 17

The Marine Corps will close its campaign for men to replace marines in France on Tuesday, June 17. Honorably discharged men from the army or marine corps and men with at least two months' service in the army or marine sections of the Student Army Training Corps are eligible for enlistment, and immediately after enlisting they will be sent to Quantico, Va., and from thence to France. They will be returned to the United States this Fall and discharged. This is the last chance for men who did not get over there before Germany under war conditions.

33d Mystery of the Roses for Inspector Morrissey

It has happened today for the 33d time.

And no more today than 33 years ago can Inspector Michael J. Morrissey of headquarters solve the mystery.

What mystery? The mystery of the donors of a huge wicker basket, filled with roses and pinks which, 33 years ago for the first time, on June 14, at Station One, found its way to his desk, on the first anniversary of his service as a patrolman.

Since then it continued coming for eight years. Then it found its way for the last 25 years in which Inspector Morrissey has been at headquarters, to his office there.

"Who sends you roses?" ask his friends of the inspector.

"Now you've got me," replies the gentleman. "I'm a crime sleuth not a rose sleuth, but just the same I'm very grateful to the kind friends, albeit unknown, who always remember me on June 14 with roses."

KOLCHAK NOT TO RE-ESTABLISH CZARDOM

Paris, June 14.—Admiral Kolchak, to whom support has been guaranteed by the Allies and the United States, promised that there would be no return to the Czarist regime, in his reply to allied inquiries concerning his policies.

Kolchak generally acceded to the Allied stipulations. He promised to fix a date for the election by universal suffrage of a constituent assembly for Russia as soon as Bolshevism is crushed, but he rejected the Allied suggestion that pending such an election, the old constituent assembly of 1917 continue to sit, on the ground that it was elected "under a regime of Bolshevik violence" and that many of its members now support the Soviet government.

Publication of the agreement by which the allied and associated powers guarantee to give material assistance to Admiral Kolchak, head of the Omsk (Anti-Bolshevik) government, is expected to affect materially the situation in Hungary where Bela Kun is considering certain demands of the entente.

It is expected that if the Soviet government in Hungary agrees to the Allies' request they will be invited to send a delegation to Paris at once to conclude peace.

'SINBAD' GIRLS TO BOOST DRIVE FOR RECRUITS

Farber Sisters, With "Jazz" Entertainers, Will Open Campaign on Common

The Farber Sisters, Constance and Irene, from Al Jolson's "Sinbad" at the Boston Opera House, will feature the noonday rally on Monday which marks the opening in this city of the nation-wide army recruiting drive.

These popular entertainers, who will sing: "Where Do They Get Those Guys," and "I Hail from Cairo," are but two of the many features which the American has secured for the noon rallies as its share in popularizing the two weeks' campaign.

Sharing with the young women in popularity are the Leo Feist Songsters, who will entertain the crowds with songs both jazz and lyric, between recruiting speeches. M. Steinert & Sons have kindly loaned a piano for use during the rallies.

HEROES TO SPEAK.

The American has secured Liberty Cottage here the rallies will be held and where the campaign, of which Boston's quota is 6,000, will be formally opened Monday by Mayor Peters. There will be other speakers, including officers and enlisted men now in service and those who no longer wear the uniform, together with prominent civilians. One of the speakers will be Private Edward H. James, who saw more service than the majority of Americans in France.

During this drive, which is for 200,000 recruits to take the place of men now in service, the War Department will bring forth pertinent facts in an attempt to show that the service offers many opportunities to thinking men.

A point on which much emphasis will be laid is the fact that a man may learn sixty different trades through the many vocational schools which have been established in the army. Vocational schools now open give recruits opportunities to learn aviation from the ground up, to become automobile experts and tank mechanics, and to qualify as skilled electricians, among others. In addition to all the trades each army post also maintains schools, teaching the same subjects taught in grammar and high schools.

MANY TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

By attaining proficiency in his chosen trade an enlisted man can rise to a grade which pays him $81 a month, together with rations, quarters, clothing and other perquisites, and which on the seventh enlistment period can be increased to $105. He may also, if he desires, take up special instruction to pass an examination for a commission.

Major H. B. Shaw, who is in charge of the drive in Boston, is a case in point. Enlisting as a private at $30 a month, he attained to the grade of brigadier-general, being reduced to major the end of the war, in accordance with the War Department custom.

The various grades, with their pay on first enlistment follow: Private, $30; private, first class, $32; corporal, $36; cook, $38; sergeant, $44; sergeant, first class, $51; quartermaster sergeant, $51; quartermaster sergeant, senior grade, $51.

REACON THEATRE.

A triple bill of new photoplay subjects will comprise the bill to be shown through the week at the Beacon Theatre. William S. Hart will be shown in "Square Deal Sanderson," as a cowboy of the ranges who is instrumental in saving the ranch of a young woman whom he befriends. This leads him to many stirring adventures, all of which are of the typical variety in which the star is most favored. Bryant Washburn will be shown in "Putting It Over," a story of a young man from the country who goes to the large city to make his fortune, but only finds a small position. He falls in love with a girl to whom he pretends that he is well situated, and when she discovers the falsity of his claim, he saves his face and destiny by making good in surprising fashion.

EASTERN STEAMSHIP LINES.

The S. R. O. sign, in theatrical parlance, might well have been applied to the Metropolitan arm of the Eastern Steamship lines last week, signifying that it was doing a capacity business.

Another new departure will probably be the re-establishment of the line to Bath, although this is not yet certain.

On the Metropolitan Line the boats leave Boston and New York simultaneously as heretofore, at 5 p. m., and are due to arrive at their destinations the next morning between 7 and 7:30 o'clock, giving passengers a daylight view of the Cape Cod Canal.

Three trips a week are made on the Bangor Line from India Wharf, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 5 p. m., and on the Portland Division trips are made on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays from Central Wharf at 5 p. m.

CUTICURA HEALS SKIN TROUBLE

On Back and Face. Itched and Burned.

"I first noticed red eruptions break out on my back. After a short time they broke out on my face. They would itch and burn and I would lie awake all night scratching and bathing them. I would have to stop work, my head would itch so.

"I saw an advertisement for Cuticura and sent for a free sample. Then I bought more and I used two cakes of Soap and two boxes of Ointment and they healed me." (Signed) Miss Ida Frank, 193 Magnolia St., Roxbury, Mass., July 12, 1918.

These fragrant emollients are all you need for all toilet purposes.

Do not fail to test the fascinating fragrance of Cuticura Talcum for the skin. For sample of Soap, Ointment and Talcum, address post-card: "Cuticura, Dept. M, Boston."

THERE IS ONLY ONE

This is the only large, bustling Basement Store in New England, with 54 complete stocks of regular goods, in addition to a constant stream of special bargains as advertised from day to day. Always keenly alive to the everyday needs of thrifty shoppers, we keep our stocks up to the highest possible point of completeness at all times, embracing everything in dependable and inexpensive wearing apparel and dress accessories for every member of the family, as well as many things for home furnishing.

"Better values than elsewhere" is the watchword here. Constant study of the wants of our customers—a rigid value test applied to all merchandise before its admission to our stock—and doubly safeguarded by a highly perfected system of merchandising, enables us to offer the very newest and best of inexpensive goods at the lowest possible margin of profit. Large, quick sales at small profit. This means more and better values, with a constant flow of that "something new" that people love to see.

THE STAGE

—By F. J. McIsaac—

PLAYS AND FILMS COMPETE FOR PATRONAGE

Poking fun at the police has always been "sure Broadway stuff" with Anglo-Saxon audiences. Assuming that the rapper is gruff, brutal and ignorant never fails to please the folks out front. It's curious, too, because in every audience there are only a few who have ever been arrested and the people who come to the theatre in limousines laugh just as loudly at the flatfoot as the boys in the gallery.

As a matter of fact automobiling has brought more people into contact with the police than anything yet invented, and one through crossing cop will make an impression that fifty smooth and cultured policemen, if there are that many, could not efface.

Willard Mack has introduced two policemen into "A Voice in the Dark," one a plain clothes "dick" is splendidly played by Frank Mattes and the other, a Pinkerton, is also well played. They are the conventional rough diamonds.

"They have to be," explained Willard Mack. "I put in eighteen months as a reporter on a newspaper in Chicago covering police. I know the force as few men know it, since to see it. There were men on the Chicago police force who could put on evening clothes and look like handsome Harry from Harvard, come of them were college graduates and spoke several languages, and were as smooth as silk.

"But when it comes to the stage reality, policemen would never do. They'd likes its cops rough. They'd have to see them slouch around talk out of the side of their mouths, be strapping stupidity, have the wrong perfect and get things out all over them in the end.

"You can always liven up a scene with a couple of policemen.

"Even the police themselves laugh at the stage cop, everybody is satisfied, who annoy them with something new."

Not Too Much Jobson.

Congressman Juul of Illinois got up in the House recently and asked: "What would happen to a manager who was running the biggest and best show on earth if he would send his star performer out to address the audience eleven times in a single evening."

And he answered his question: "The show would flop."

Not if the performer were Al Jolson, though. This greatest of all black-face comedians can't crowd out the Boston Opera House stage often enough to suit the audience, and he has a way of getting into such close relationship with the audience—something like the show-on-the-bar feeling that the audience never wants to go home. He gives them just about as much as the former can deliver without deliberately committing suicide, but there is ever the yell for more.

Jolson's humor is primitive and infantile; he can make you sick by overdoing himself seriously he touches his material with a hop and a jump and his audience off on a slide. He is a player who loves his fellow performers for the best of reasons, individual member of the audience. He breaks down the barrier of the footlights and makes him also of the company. Whether he sings, dances burlesques or tell his funny stories he is always at his ease on the most intimate personal terms with those he is entertaining.

"Sinbad" is the most lavish and most sumptuous spectacle ever put on in Boston. Regardless of expense, liable for its wealth of color as well as striking effects of line. Here and there a costume may be a trifle garish, but the whole the most startling combinations of color and are harmonious. The stage settings too, are of a high standard than usual, revealing a tendency to the decorative rather than realistic. Warm light effects, especially in the Oriental scenes, combine with graceful lines and colors to be enhanced by the way—settings and costumes bring a wealth of beauty.

Miss Maynard a Hit.

Dorothy Maynard, who was last seen in the Columbia, made a distinct personal success in the performance of "Uh Boy" at the Plymouth Theatre this week. She played the careless, reckless, fun-loving maid of the hero's apartment gave the piece an extra.

Miss Maynard made her stage debut in Chicago with Grace Van Studdiford in "Sergeant Brue" the opening season she went out in "Robin Hood," where she was heard by Henry Savage and engaged for the Castles for two seasons. For three seasons she played in "The Spring Maid" and "The Rose Maid." She created the original Nadine in "The Chocolate Soldier," played opposite Donald Brian-ley in "When Dreams Come True," and last year played one of the chief roles in "The Canary Maid."

She is of French-Canadian extraction, has played in both languages and has had a wider and more varied experience than most operatic prima donnas. Despite her length of service Miss Maynard is still young in years and appearance, she jumps about doors and has with her a beautiful horse which she rides daily. She will be seen in the coming week in "Very Good Eddie."

Quite a Gamble

Now that "Open Your Eyes" has won a signal victory over censors, critics and other persons who objected to a film which referred to the social diseases being shown publicly there is no reason to conceal the fact that Dr. Golden, the producer, took a terrible chance.

He had purchased the world rights to "Open Your Eyes," engaged the Shubert Theatre for the entire Summer and carried on a far-flung campaign of advertising, and when the picture came up for judgment last Monday every dollar the doctor had in the world was at stake. He did not know what the Boston censors would permit the picture to show, despite the approval of the United States health authorities, and had they closed the show as cavalierly as Mayor Fitzgerald once closed "The Easiest Way" and as Mayor Curley closed "The Natural Law," he would have been a ruined man.

"I knew I would win," he explained, "I am a physician myself, and I knew if my picture is right and an influence for good so great that an intelligent censor would interfere with it. And I knew that the Boston censorship was intelligent. So there you are."

Dodging Prohibition

As Summer touches us gently on the brow and makes our B. V. D's feel as though we had fallen overboard in them, let us turn our attention to George Dodge, the Pooh Bah of Pemberton, the Peter Pan of Paragon and the Road Terror of Hull.

In one short month, if Congress tells us true, the willowy beer, the insidious cocktail, the expensive champagne will no longer be served at Santasket or anywhere else in this broad land. What are the Summer restaurants going to do?

I asked George Dodge, who owns Pemberton and Paragon, what he planned to offer the crowds in exchange for their bottled sunshine. He grinned, did not appear cast down, and said, "I've got a scheme."

No amount of coaxing would get any more out of him.

"If I tell you, some of these other fellows will try it," he said. "Let them work out their own salvation."

Dodge is running his huge cabaret show at Paragon Palm Garden just as he did in former years. It is more expensive, more elaborate and more attractive than ever. Down at Pemberton he is not content with the Jazz band, professional dancers and a stage bathing girl, where moonlight swimming may be indulged. He has hired two aeroplanes to help entertain his guests.

Hold on a minute, maybe that's the scheme. You buy a ride in the aeroplane. The machine swings out over the three-mile course in couple of minutes and you are served with a highball or a bottle of flat ale included in the price of the ride.

Is that the idea, George?

So insistent is Mr. David Wark Griffith in impelling his audiences to "feel" the atmosphere of peace and gentleness that dominates the religious teachings of China that in his prologue to the photoplay the centre of interest is a huge image of Buddha seated, as was its parallel condemnation and sweet content on an altar of silken drapery. So, too, the faint odor of incense pervades the house, the foyer of the theatre is made beautiful with Chinese decorations and plum blossoms and even the program girls are little Chinese maidens, while the ushers are clad in the garments of Chinese ladies.

But equally as dominant as these is the figure at the Buddha. Right side the foyer, where flashed by in the street cars, is a huge painting figures of animals that are supposed to keep evil spirits away from the temple, standing guard over the Buddha with half-closed eyes. What influence the Buddha in Broken Blossoms may have on Occidental peoples is hard to understand and will, even with the assistance of the screen had been shown in the foyer but from a performance but that some of the subtle

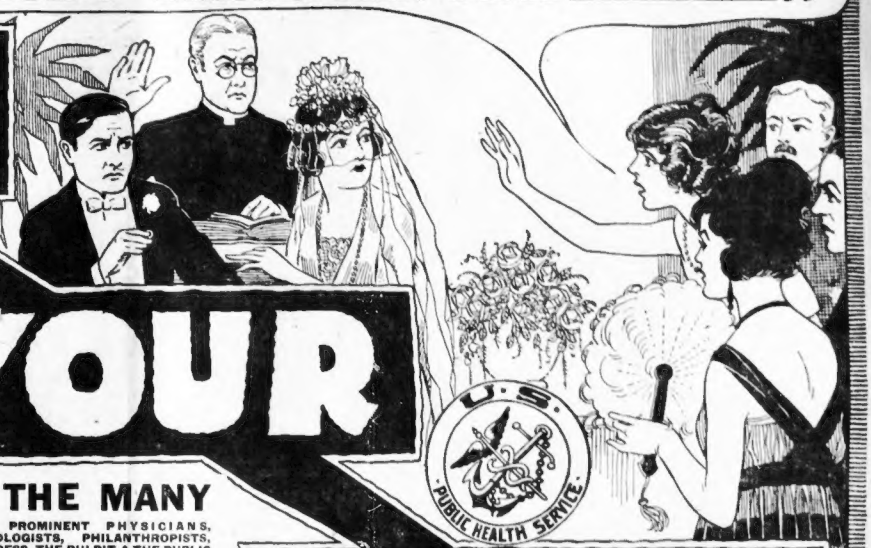
OPEN YOUR EYES



A "Mother" to 800 Girls Says:

As one who is more or less responsible for the welfare of 800 young women, I wish everyone might see "Open Your Eyes."

As the mother of a son and daughter just coming into young manhood and womanhood, who have been carefully reared and instructed concerning the things which destroy, I shall insist that both my children see the film. It is instructive and convincing. It is presented in a way to appeal to the finer instincts in every man and woman.

I believe it will serve as a safeguard to our young people.

'OPEN YOUR EYES' A FILM PLAY WITH A STRONG LESSON

The disastrous results of the effect of a cocktail or two by a young woman lunching at a cabaret are shown in "Open Your Eyes," the sensational film play being shown at the Shubert Theatre.

The girl, quite unused to liquor of any kind, at the urgent solicitation of her male companion, a young rounder with too much money at his disposal, takes her first drink. Then there was another—there generally is—and the world looked different to the young girl, whose mother, too busy with her social and club duties, had neglected to inform her child as to the dangers of which she should have known. There was a sudden disappearance, life in a handsome apartment, and then disillusion. Then desertion, following recriminations and a statement by the young man that his future interests laid in another quarter.

Full realization of her position came to the girl at last and with it, through the columns of a newspaper, the announcement that her seducer was about to be married to a young girl of fine family connections. With the idea of saving the bride from lifelong misery rather than in the spirit of revenge, the victimized young woman rushes to the place of the wedding and is just in time to prevent the speaking of the all-important words by the officiating clergyman. In the face of the assembled company of friends and relatives she pronounces the young man unfit for marriage, and as she sinks faint and trembling limbs are sufficient proof of the truth of the charges. But a little knowledge imparted by the mother of the poor girl would have saved her from such a situation and such future prospects.

WALDRON'S CASINO.

Another of Manager Charles H. Waldron's own shows—The Trocadero—will supply the attraction at Waldron's Casino all the week beginning June 16. The company has just reached Boston after a most successful tour of the country, and it is asserted that it gives the merriest sort of an entertainment. That this can hardly be called in question is quite evident by a glance at the names of the talent comprising this coterie of comedians, comediennes and specialty people. Among the principals will be found George Walsh, Frank Wakefield, George Banks, an old-time Boston newspaperman, Shaw and Lee, Jack Witte, the famous Carnival Trio, character, and Mr. Hart and Lambert Hillyer, co-directors, took the company to a place near Victorville, Cal., for desert scenes and spent two weeks in the open.

A Versatile Leading Woman.

In "Putting It Over," Bryant Washburn's new picture which will be presented at the Modern Theatre all next week, Shirley Mason, the dainty little star, will play the leading feminine role—that of Mary Stacey, the little city girl with whom the big country boy falls in love.

Mr. Washburn is quite fortunate in having for his leading woman such a splendid little actress. Miss Mason has had an extensive stage and screen career. She co-starred with Ernest Truex in "Come On In," "Good-Bye, Bill," and several other well-known successes. Three recent productions in which she starred are "The Winning Girl," "The Rescuing Angel" and "The Final Close-Up."

As little Mary Stacey Miss Mason is said to give a splendid performance. The picture was produced under the direction of Donald Crisp, and is founded on an original story by George Weston which appeared in the Pictorial Review for October, 1918.

WALDORF THEATRE.

The Summer plans of the management of the Waldorf Theatre contemplates a series of especially good productions, which include a number of novelties of strong appeal. The bill will be changed twice weekly, and Manager Harry Jones announces that he has many surprising attractions that will make this cool auditorium a resort that for pleasure and comfort will be sure of continuous response.

NEW FILMS IN HOME TOWN THEATRES

The latest and best screen drama and comedies will be found at the following home town picture theatres:

DADDY LONG LEGS ON SCREEN

The announced appearance of Mary Pickford at the Tremont Theatre in the first photoplay filmed by her own company, "Daddy Long Legs," will again call attention to the wonderful story by Jean Webster, a young woman but a short time out of college. The story was published as a serial in a popular magazine and hailed as the most humanly interesting serial in the history of that publication.

The great demand for it led to its publication in book form, in which shape it was read in every English speaking country of the world. Such a story could not escape the stage. Klaw & Erlanger got the stage rights and spent money freely in producing the play, with Henry Miller and Ruth Chatterton in the leading roles. The producers "cleaned up" hundreds of thousands of dollars with the play before it was finally released for movie reproduction. And even then it cost Miss Pickford $100,000 for the film rights.

The part of Judy Abbott, the orphan who forms such queer ideas as to the personal appearance of her unknown benefactor, is eminently suited to Mary Pickford's talent; in fact, it has been the talk of the screen folk for a long time that Mary Pickford would eventually appear in the role of Judy. And for a long time Miss Pickford has been anticipating the pleasure of making the impersonation.

Now, on the screen, "Daddy Long Legs" will be seen by more people than ever. The millions who read the books or saw the spoken play will see it on the screen, too, for no one can forget the appealing story which comes like a ray of sunlight into the troubles of everyday life. Marshall Neilan, one of the new wonders of the motion picture world, not only directed the picture, but he is in the cast.

The Sticker.

They call him the "Sticker" possibly because his name is George Washington Sticker, but if they call him "Freckles" there could be no possible complaint from the party of the second part. For never was boy more thoroughly decorated with freckles than is George Washington Sticker, the lad who is the life of the party in "The Unpardonable Sin." In real life he is Master Wesley Barry, a boy who should be watched as Charlie Chaplin had better look to his laurels.

The Sticker explains his being so far away from Topeka, Kas., by saying that his mother, who was a high school teacher, he was making the tour of Europe. War overtook them in Belgium and his mother was unfortunately stranded up with a party of suspects, and with the others was made food for machine guns in the streets of Ghent. The Sticker escaped by hiding behind his mother when the volley was fired. He rolled out of the pile of dead as soon as the firing squad had retired and has been "on his own" ever since.

Although his mother was a school teacher, the lad has somehow picked up a choice assortment of slang and gutter lingo, of which he is quite proud. He has also picked up and adopted a small dark family of orphans, to be exact, and is fathering them in fine style when he first appears in the picture.

Best Barroom Ever Staged.

A set that occupied fully three-quarters of the big stage of the William S. Hart studios in Hollywood, was erected to represent a barroom and resort in New Mexico, for "Square Deal Sanderson." Mr. Hart's new picture, which will be presented for the first time in Boston all next week at the Boston Theatre.

The set is complete in every detail. It shows the long bar with its formidable array of bottles and glasses; the immense room with card tables and chairs—all the paraphernalia of the southwestern haunt of the untamed. But there is no dance hall—there is only one woman in the story—Ann Little, who plays the role of a young ranch owner beset by men determined to steal her land, and herself as well.

Much of the picture is exterior in

BIG BUILDING BOOM NOW ON IN BAY STATE

Heavy Demand for Permits Include Projects Involving Millions

Building operations throughout Massachusetts have suddenly taken on new activities, and the number of building permits applied for and issued by the Building Inspection Department, district police, with offices in the State House, has been greatly increased, according to J. J. Carey, head of that department.

Records of the State Building Inspection Department, which operates throughout Massachusetts with the exception of Boston proper, indicate that building in the Commonwealth is on the increase. Outside of Massachusetts numerous structures are to be constructed by Massachusetts contractors.

The Seamless Rubber Company, of New Haven, Conn., manufacturers of rubber goods for The United Drug Company, have placed a contract with The Aberthaw Construction Company of Boston, Mass., involving an outlay of over $1,000,000 for the construction of a new plant near their present location.

The contract is the result of an industrial investigation and recommendations made by the Aberthaw Company and while plans are not yet completed, it is known that the new plant will contain about 200,000 square feet of floor space, as compared with the 187,000 square feet available at present, and will embody the most modern elements of design and arrangement as regards routing of work.

STAGNATION OVER.

"Information from various sources plainly indicates that the stagnation in building activity is about at an end," said Morton C. Tuttle, president of the Aberthaw Construction Company. Evidence of this is seen in the contract for a new picker building at a cost of approximately $100,000, for the Butler Mills of New Bedford, and an industrial housing project at New Britain, Conn., for the Stanley Works, both of which were placed with The Aberthaw Construction Company and call for the immediate commencement of work.

The New Britain housing project will represent an outlay of about $750,000 and calls for the construction of a number of single and douse houses, all of wood construction with stucco finish. The single houses will be of six rooms. Hot air heat and electric lights will be supplied each house.

The Picker building for the Butler Mills will be of reinforced concrete with brick facings, three stories, 101 by 115 feet, and will have the bale breaker on opening room on the top floor, picker room on the second floor and the duster on the ground level.

Another textile development, on which work is already under way, is the construction of an entirely new, complete mill for the Jackson Mills, at Nashua, N. H. This contract, with the others to which reference has been made, represents a total of nearly two and a quarter million dollars of construction in New England now under way by the Aberthaw Construction Company.

Some of the building operations throughout the State which are regarded with much optimism by Mr. Carey will bring about better building conditions when they get under way. But at the present time most of the building plans throughout the State are being carried out as follows:

Rubber factory at Watertown; school at Deerfield; a big tool factory at Athol; optical factory at Stockbridge; a municipal building of industrial class at Newton; a big factory in Worcester, and also an ice cream factory; shoe factory in Haverhill; paint factory in Watertown; hospital in Westfield; a railroad round-house in Lowell; school in Charlton; synagogue in Cambridge; foundry in Lawrence, a sprinkler factory in Worcester.

FEAR LABOR SHORTAGE.

One school is about to be built in Hadley and another in Pelham, while two schools are about to be erected in Athol, with another in Amesbury. A woolen mill is to be constructed at Methuen, a celluloid factory at Leominster, as well as a large bowling alley there, and a dye factory at Hanson.

In Haverhill a motor factory is to be built, while in Needham a church is about to be erected. There is to be a school in Greenfield and a fraternal building in Lynn. In New Bedford two mills are about to be started, and in Worcester a fair-sized razor factory is to be begun immediately. In Salisbury a hotel is to be built.

With all the building in projection in Massachusetts under way there is likely to be a big shortage of skilled labor in the mid-Summer and Fall, say experts in urging the prospective home builder to build now. It has been pointed out that with the increase in building activities skilled labor will be at a premium and builders of homes will be at a disadvantage.

Petition to the Secretary of War and Secretary of the Navy to send Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Home with Six Months' Pay

Sign this petition, get your friends to sign it, and forward it to the Boston American, 80 Summer st., Boston, Mass.

To the Honorable Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War:
To the Honorable Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy:

The undersigned respectfully urge you to return to their homes as soon as possible the soldiers, sailors and marines who have accomplished so brilliantly every object America had in the war.

We urge, also, that you obtain the necessary authority to pay these men their military wages for six months, or for some sufficient period after their discharge from the army until they can obtain useful and remunerative employment.

MILFORD MACHINISTS PREPARE TO STRIKE

Milford, June 14—More than 600 members of Milford lodge of machinists, employed here and in Hopedale, have voted to strike on July 1 unless their demands for an eight-hour day, overtime and the right of collective bargaining are granted by the mill men. Conferences with the employers have been carried on for a month and while assurances have been made that the demands of the machinists will be granted, the strike vote was taken to forestall any unfavorable eventuality. The Grand Lodge of Machinists, however, must sanction any strike.

COX TO SPEAK AT FLAG DAY FETE AT SOMERVILLE

Flag Day will be celebrated by Somerville Lodge No. 817, B. P. O. E., at the High School Auditorium this evening, commencing with a band concert on Central Hill Park at 7:30 followed by exercises in the hall.

Lieutenant-Governor Channing H. Cox will deliver the oration and Frank Curry of Boston will deliver an address on the history of the flag. Patriotic selections will be rendered by the Pilgrim Male Quartet and Madame Calvert. No tickets will be needed for admission to the hall.

METHODISTS GAIN $2,335,890 OVER QUOTA

The New England Conference has oversubscribed its quota of $2,335,890 for the Methodist Centenary, to the extent of $1,145,555 on the result of additional figures from Boston District, announced by Dr. J. L. Bartholomew, Executive Secretary of New England Area, at the Boston headquarters today.

The national total for the Methodist Centenary continues to climb, the figures reported to date being $107,000,000. It is expected by June 15 the oversubscription of the $105,000,000 quota will amount to at least $2,000,000.

CHARITY BEQUESTS MADE IN SWIFT WILL

New Bedford, June 14.—Many bequests to charity are contained in the will of Mrs. Annie Amelie Swift, late of Acushnet, which has been offered for probate here. The sum of $3,000 is given to St. Andrew's Church along with the family silver, with the instruction that it be melted and used for communion plates. The town of Acushnet receives $1,000 as a fund to be used for the employment of a district nurse. The Protestant orphanage Society of County Sligo, Ireland, receives annuities from Mercy Docks, Inc., stocks.

Jack London's Last Novel

HEARTS OF THREE

Never Before Published

By JACK LONDON

Author of "The Call of the Wild," "The Valley of the Moon," "The Sea Wolf," "The Iron Heel," "White Fang" and Other Famous Novels

The theme of this story was suggested to the author by Charles W. Goddard.

"BONES of tierra caliente men, two idols, two emeralds of enormous size, two rubies ditto, and ourselves are all the place contains," Francis summed up. "Only a couple of things remain for us to do: Go back and bring up Ricardo and the mules to make camp outside and bring up the old gentleman and his sacred knots if we have to carry him."

"You wait with Leoncia, and I'll go back and bring them up," Henry volunteered when they had threaded the long passages and the avenues of the erect dead and won to the sunshine and the sky outside the face of the cliff.

A Warning

Back on the barking sands the peon and his father knelt in the circle so noisily drawn by the old man's forefinger. A local rain squall beat upon them, and though the peon shivered the old man prayed on oblivious to what might happen to his skin in the way of wind and water. It was because the peon shivered and was uncomfortable that he observed two things which his father missed.

First, he saw Alvares Torres and Jose Manchono cautiously venture out from the jungle upon the sand. Next, he saw a miracle. The miracle was that the pair of them trudged steadily across the sand without causing the slightest sound to arise from their progress. When they had disappeared ahead he touched his finger tentatively to the sand and aroused no ghostly whispering. He thrust his finger into the sand, yet all was silent, as was it silent when he buffeted the sand heartily with the flat of his palm. The punishment never had rendered the sand dumb.

He shook his father out of his prayers, announcing:

"The sand no longer is noisy. It is as silent as the grave. And I have seen the enemy of the rich Gringo pass across the sand without sound. He is not devoid of sin, this Alvares Torres, yet did the sand make no sound. The sand has died. The voice of the sand is not. Where the sinful may walk you and I, old father, may walk."

Inside the circle the old Maya, with trembling forefinger in the sand, traced further cabalistic characters, and the sand did not shout back at him. Outside the circle it was the same—because the sand had become wet, and because it was the way of the sand to be vocal only when it was bone-dry under the sun.

He fingered the knots of the sacred writing tassel. "It says," he reported, "that when the sand no longer talks it is safe to proceed. So far I have obeyed all instruction in order to obey further instructions let us now proceed."

So well did they proceed that, shortly beyond the barking sands, they overtook Torres and Manchono, which worthy pair slunk off into the brush on one side, watched the priest and his son go by, and took up their trail well in the rear, while Henry, taking a short cut, missed both couples.

CHAPTER XV.

"Even so, it was a mistake and a weakness on my part to remain in Panama," Francis was saying to Leoncia, as they sat side by side on the room outside the cave entrance, waiting Henry's return.

"Does the stock market of New York then mean so much to you?" Leoncia coquettishly teased, yet only part of it was coquetry, the major portion of it being temptation. She was afraid of being alone with this man who she loved so astoundingly and terribly.

Francis was impatient.

"I am ever a straight talker, Leoncia. I mean what I mean, in the direct, shortest way——"

"Wherein you differ from us Spaniards," she interposed, "who must garnish and dress the simplest thoughts with all decorations of speech."

But he continued undeterred what he had started to say.

"There you are a baffler, Leoncia," which was just what I was going to call you. I speak straight talk and true talk, which is a man's way. You baffle in speech, and flutter like a butterfly—which, I grant, is a woman's way and to be expected. Nevertheless, it is not fair to me. I tell you straight out the heart of me, and you understand. You flutter and baffle, and I do not understand. Therefore you have me at disadvantage. You know I love you. I have told you plainly. If What do I know about you?"

With downcast eyes and rising color in her cheeks, she sat silent, unable to reply.

"You see!" he insisted, "you do not answer. You look warmer and more beautiful and desirable than ever, more enticing, in short, and yet you baffle me and tell me nothing of your heart or intention. Is it because you are woman? Or because you are Spanish?"

She felt herself stirred profoundly. Beyond herself, yet in cool control of herself, she raised her eyes and looked steadily in his as steadily she said:

"I can be Anglo-Saxon, or English, or American, or whatever you choose to name the ability to look things squarely in the face and to talk squarely into the face of things" she paused and debated covly with herself, and coolly resumed. "You complain that while you have told me that you love me, I have not told you whether or not I love you. I shall settle that forever and now. I do not love you."

"Wait!" she commanded. "Who is the woman now? Or the Spaniard? I had not finished. I love you. I am proud that I love you. Yet there is more. You have asked me for my heart and intention. I have told you part of the one. I now tell you all of the other. I intend to marry Henry!"

Such Anglo-Saxon directness left Francis breathless.

"In heaven's name, why?" was all he could utter.

A Double Love

"Because I love Henry," she answered, her eyes still unshrinkingly on his.

"And you . . . you say you love me?" he quavered.

"And I love you, too. I love both of you. I am a good woman; at least I always used to think so. I still think so, though my reason tells me that I cannot love two men at the same time and be a good woman. I don't care about that. If I am bad, it is I, and I cannot help myself for being what I was born to be."

He groaned and waited, but her lover was still speechless.

"And who's the Anglo-Saxon now," she queried, with a slight smile, half of bravery, half of amusement at the dumbness of consternation her words had produced in him. "I have told you, without baffling, without fluttering, my heart full and my intention."

"But you can't!" he protested wildly. "You can't love me and marry Henry."

"Perhaps you have not understood," she chided gravely. "I intend to marry Henry. I love you. I love Henry. But I cannot marry both of you. The law will not permit. Therefore I shall marry only one of you. It is my intention that that one be Henry."

"Then why, why," he demanded, "did you persuade me into remaining?"

"Because I loved you. I have already told you!"

"If you keep this up I shall go mad!" he cried.

"I have felt like going mad over you myself many times," she assured him.

If you think it is easy for me thus to play the Anglo-Saxon you are mistaken. But no Anglo-Saxon, not even you, whom I love so dearly, can hold me in contempt because I hide the shameful secrets of the impulses of my being. Less shameful I find it for me to tell them, right out in meeting, to you. If this be Anglo-Saxon, make the most of it. If it be Spanish, and woman, and Solano, still make of the woman—a Spanish woman of the best of it, for I am Spanish, and Solano——

"But I don't talk with my hands," she added with a wan smile in the silence that fell.

Just as he was about to speak she hushed him, and both listened to a crackling and rustling from the underbrush that advertised the passage of humans.

"Listen," she whispered hurriedly, laying her hand suddenly on his arm, as if pleading, "I shall be finally Anglo-Saxon, and for the last time, when I tell you what I am going to tell you. Afterward, and for always, I shall be the baffling, fluttering female Spaniard you have chosen for my description. Listen: I love Henry, it is true, very true. I love you, more, much more. I shall marry Henry . . . because I love him and am pledged to him. Yet always shall I love you more."

Before he could protest the old Maya priest and his peon son emerged from the underbrush close upon them. Scarcely noticing their presence, the priest went down on his knees, exclaiming in Spanish:

"For the first time have my eyes beheld the eyes of Chia."

He ran the knots of the sacred tassel and began a prayer in Maya, which, could they have understood, ran as follows:

"O immortal Chia, great spouse of the divine Hsatal, who created all things out of nothingness! O immortal spouse of Hsatal, thyself the mother of the corn, the divinity of the heart of the husked grain, goddess of the rain and the fructifying sun rays, nourisher of all the giraffe and roots and fruits for the sustenance of man! O glorious Chia, whose mouth ever commands the ear of Hsatal, to thee humbly, thy priest, I make my prayer. Be kind to me, and forgiving. From thy mouth first issue forth the golden key that opens the ear of Hsatal.

"Let thy faithful priest gain to Hsatal's treasure—not for himself, O divinity, but for the sake of his son, whom the Gringo saved. Thy children, the Mayas, pass. There is no need for them of the treasure. I am thy last priest. With me passes all understanding of thee and of thy great spouse, whose name I breathe only with my forehead on the stones. Hear me, O Chia, hear me! My head is on the stones before thee!"

For all of five minutes the old Maya lay prone, quivering and jerking as if in a catalepsy, while Leoncia and Francis looked curiously on, themselves half-swept by the unmistakable solemnity of the ritual, which non-understandable though it was.

Without waiting for Henry, Francis entered the cave a second time. With Leoncia beside him he felt quite like a guide as he showed the old priest over the place. The latter, ever reading the knots and mumbling, followed behind, while the peon was left on guard outside.

In the avenue of mummies the priest halted reverently—not so much for the mummies as for the sacred tassel.

"It is so written," he announced, holding out a particular string of knots. "These men were evil, and robbers. Their doom here is to wait forever outside the inner room of Maya mystery."

An Inspiration.

Francis hurried him past the heap of bones of his father before him, and led him into the inner chamber, where, first of all, he prostrated himself before the two idols and prayed long and earnestly. After that, he studied certain of the strings very carefully. Then he made announcement, first in Maya, which Francis gave him to know was unintelligible, and next in broken Spanish.

"From the mouth of Chia to the ear of Hsatsi—so it is written."

Francis listened to the cryptic utterance, glanced into the dark cavity of the goddess' mouth, stuck the blade of his hunting knife into the keyhole of the god's monstrous ear, then tapped the stone with the hilt of his knife and declared the statue to be hollow. Back to Chia, he was tapping her to demonstrate her hollowness, when the old Maya muttered:

"The feet of Chia rest upon nothingness."

Francis, caught by the idea, made the old man verify the message by the knots.

"Her feet are large," Leoncia laughed, "but they rest on the solid rock floor and not on nothingness."

Francis pushed against the female deity with his hand and found that she moved easily. Gripping her with both hands, he began to wrestle, moving her with quick jerks and twists.

"For the strong man and unafraid with Chia walk," the priest read. "But the next three knots declare: 'Beware! Beware! Beware!'

"Well, I guess that nothingness, whatever it is, won't bite me," Francis chuckled, as he released the statue after shifting it a yard from its original position.

"Therefore, old lady, stand there for awhile, or sit down if that will rest your feet. They ought to be tired after resting on nothing for so many centuries."

A cry from Leoncia drew his gaze to the portion of the floor just vacated by the large feet of Chia. Stepping backward from the displaced goddess, he had been just about to fall into the rock-hewn hole her feet had concealed. It was circular, and a full yard in diameter. In vain he tested its depths by dropping lighted matches. They fell burning, and, without reaching bottom, still falling, were extinguished by the draught of their flight.

"It looks very much like nothingness without a bottom," he adjudged, as he dropped a tiny stone fragment.

Many seconds they listened ere they heard it strike.

"Even that may not be the bottom," Leoncia suggested. "It may have been struck against some projection from the side and even lodged there."

"Well, this will determine it," Francis cried, seizing an ancient musket from the bones on the floor and preparing to drop it.

But the old man stopped him.

"The message of the sacred knots is: 'Whoso violates the nothingness beneath the feet of Chia shall quickly and terribly die.'"

"Pshaw! I'm from me to make a stir in the void," Francis grinned, tossing the musket aside. "But what are we to do now, old Maya man? From the mouth of Chia to the ear of Hsatsi sounds easy—but how?—and what? Run the sacred knots with thy fingers, old top, and find for us how and what."

For the son of the priest, the peon with the frayed knees, the clock had struck. All unawares, he had seen his last sunrise. No matter what happened this day, no matter what blind efforts he might make to escape, the day was to be his last day. Had he remained on guard at the cave entrance he would surely have been killed by Torres and Manchono, who had arrived close on his heels.

But, instead of so remaining, it entered his cautious, timid soul to make a scout out and beyond for possible foes. Thus he missed death in the daylight under the sky. Yet the pace of the hands of the clock was unalterable, and neither hearer nor farther was his destined end from them.

While he scouted Alvares Torres and Jose Manchono arrived at the cave opening. The colossal, mother-of-pearl eyes of Chia on the wall of the cliff were too much for the superstition-reared Caroo.

"Do you go in," he told Torres. "I will wait here and watch and guard."

And Torres, with strong in him the blood of the ancient forebear who stood faithfully through the centuries in the avenue of the mummy dead, entered the Maya cave as courageously as that forebear had entered.

And the instant he was out of sight Jose Manchono, unafraid to murder treacherously any living, breathing man, but greatly afraid of the unseen world behind unexplainable phenomena, forgot the trust of watch and ward and stole through the jungle. Thus the peon, returning reassured from his scout and curious to learn the Maya secrets of his father and of the sacred tassel, found nobody at the cave mouth and himself entered into it close upon the heels of Torres.

The latter trod softly and cautiously for fear of disclosing his presence to those he trailed. Also, his progress was still further delayed by the spectacle of the ancient dead in the hall of mummies. Curiously he examined these men whose history had stopped there in the antechamber of the Maya gods. Especially curious was he at sight of the mummy at the end of the line. The resemblance of him was too striking for him not to see, and he could not but believe that he was looking upon some direct great ancestor of his.

A Queer Fancy

Still gazing and speculating, he was warned by approaching footsteps and glanced about for some place to hide. A sardonic humor seized him. Taking the helmet from the head of his ancient kin, he placed it on his own head. Likewise did he drape the rotten mantle about his form and equip himself with the great sword and the great floppy boots that almost fell to pieces as he pulled them on. Next, half tenderly, he deposited the nude dummy on its back in the dark shadows behind the other mummies. And finally, in the same spot at the end of the line, his hand resting on the sword-hilt, he assumed the same posture he had observed of the mummy.

HARD DAY'S WORK FOR HARVARD CREWS

Harvard Training Quarters, Red Top, Conn., June 14.—The Harvard crews start on their second week's training at these quarters this morning. The work expected from them today will be the hardest they have done since arriving. All crews are going over their respective courses on time today.

A three-mile paddle for both varsity crews last evening and half-mile pace with several starts constituted the work of the Harvard crews today. The freshmen were given a complete day of rest. Coach Haines believing they were a little over trained and the day was spent in reading, walking and playing games.

In the morning they were sent out in one of the launches and watched the varsity race and in the afternoon went for a long walk down to the submarine base. While there they were shown through a German sub that is docked there.

The varsity crews went over to the west bank in the morning and held a series of racing starts with the aid of a pistol. This is done in order that they can get the jump with the shot. Then both crews held a half-mile dash down stream with a favoring wind and tide. The varsity won by half a length, making the distance in 2 minutes 18 seconds.

OPEN Y. W. C. A. CAMP AT CANTON ON JUNE 17

On Bunker Hill Day the Y. W. C. A. Summer camp at Canton will open. The Paquit bungalow on the shore of Ponkapoag Reservoir formerly used by the Field and Forest Club has been devoted to this purpose and is in readiness to accommodate thirty-five girls. The camp will be open to members for vacations, week-ends, holidays and picnics.

There are facilities for swimming, rowing and land sports under the leadership of Miss Millicent Hosmer and Miss Nellie Marchen, directors of recreation work.

WITH THE SCHOLBOYS

Fred Sawyer as usual was very much in the limelight in the Suburban League game against Somerville. He twirled a clever brand of ball, pandering in the pinches and also came through at the bat for an average of .500. It was his hit that started the scoring in the first inning.

* * *

Myles Toulouse was not in the lineup yesterday for Somerville as the result of a little argument with the coach. His place was taken by George Dowd and Laverty went in at second.

* * *

Steve Patten of Somerville was bothered by a finger which he sprained in practice and was not able to pitch up to his usual standard. Even at that he did a good job, only to have his team field behind him in an inefficient manner.

* * *

Bunny Ayles, who plays second for the Newton team, made a catch of one of Laverty's throws that was bare-faced robbery. It looked as if he was unaware of the fact that he had caught the ball till one of his teammates shouted to him to throw the ball.

* * *

The Newton-Somerville game was replete with peculiar incidents, but the "well-known thing" Snowlins had them all stopped. Speaking of this Arnold and Germany Sharfen, none of their stuff was half as funny as some of the decisions that said umps is capable of giving at certain times.

* * *

Seavey, Moore, Peppard, Ayles and Hoekman, all regular players on the Newton team this year, will wear the colors of the same school next year and should make up the foundation of another championship team.

RECEIVING SHIP NINE AT HINGHAM GOING STRONG

With no record to date of eleven victories and but two defeats, the receiving ship at Hingham is showing its wake to the semi-pro and service clubs in the vicinity of Boston. They meet the U. S. Receiving Ship Board nine at Camp Hingham this afternoon.

OWEN GALLAGHER, BOSTON COLLEGE HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL, BASEBALL AND HOCKEY.

OWEN GALLAGHER was the star halfback on the Boston College High eleven last year and also played on the hockey team. He is a member of the baseball team, being one of the men who make up the star infield. He plays third base. This is his last year at the high school and he will enter Boston College next Fall.

MEDFORD NINE HAS CHANCE TO TIE NEWTON

The Newton High practically clinched the pennant in the Suburban League race yesterday by beating the Somerville team 8 to 1. The best the Medford team, who are the runners up, can do is to get a tie in case that Newton should lose their last game, while Medford wins two.

This is the first year that Newton has been in the league and they certainly have made an advantageous entrance. A tie between the two teams would surely be a great boost for the league and would bring one of the largest crowds of the year together to see the two teams battle.

Much of the success of the Newton team is due to the fielding and generalship of their captain, Fred Sawyer, who is easily the best twirler in the league. Hale Bulfinch has nothing on the well-known Freddy when it comes to breaking up the games with his bat. For the three games he has batted for the grand average of .410. His fielding average also shows that not many get by him. His average in the field is .852.

The Newton team the next time they will put on a strong team as five of the regular players of this year will be back again. Of course the absence of their pitching star will be felt, but they should be able to do pretty well with the veteran material that will be back. Newton has one more game to play, which is against Somerville, now in third place, and will not have an easy time with them. They got by yesterday by a 9 to 2 score, so their hopes run high.

There will be only three games in the Suburban League today as the Somerville-Newton game scheduled for today was played off yesterday. The games today are Medford at Cambridge Latin, Rindge Tech at Everett, and Brookline against Malden. The best game of the day should be between Brookline and Malden, as they are evenly matched, while the other games are between first and second division teams.

KRAMER! VERRI AND MADDEN TO CLASH

Newark, June 14.—Frank L. Kramer, the American champion; Francisco Verri, the speedy and popular Italian, and Eddie Madden, the Newark boy, will meet in the final of the Grand Prize of Newark at the Velodrome tomorrow afternoon.

This race was scheduled for last Sunday, but was postponed on account of rain. It will be decided in ensemble heats, the best two out of three.

A ten-mile open, with all the stars in it; a one-mile handicap and a two-mile invitation will complete the card of professional races. There will be four events for the amateurs.

FAST TROTTING RACES CLOSE MEET

The light harness "meet" at Combination Park came to a close yesterday afternoon and was a decided success from every viewpoint. The good brown stud, Patrick Duluth, by the Harvester, won the fast trot, reeling off the first mile in 2:11¼, with Silkehall right there at the finish. Allan Wilson of this city had his Parlon trotter all ready, and with Billy Fleming doing the teaming the combination proved a good one.

The Raider in this event broke badly while on the trot in front and was distanced the first heat. Parlon had little trouble from then on, winning easily at the end. Lott Todd got second money, Charles W. third.

Jessie Gentry delivered in the 2:11 trot, Maxie Voy second, Miss Carter third.

PICK DE PALMA TO WIN BIG AUTO RACE

New York, June 14.—The International Sweepstakes at the Sheepshead Bay Speedway this afternoon brings together twelve of the most daring drivers and the speediest machines of two continents.

In the four events that make up the program America and Europe renew the automobile speed contriversy that was started at the record 500-mile race in Indianapolis.

The sweepstakes are decided at ten, thirty and fifty miles, the sprint contests being the best test of blinding speed and skill of the pilots.

Ralph De Palma, holder of all world's marks up to twenty miles, made last February, when his machine flew over the Florida course at a rate of 149 miles an hour, rules a slight favorite over the competing field.

De Palma always drives his best in sprints, but in the elimination tests every entrant passed the required speed of 108 miles an hour.

SPEED STARS ON TRACK TONIGHT AT REVERE

The Logan-Chandler dispute, which generally comes to a head about closing time each season, has broken out bright and early this year, and this choice little battle of speed stars will be staged this evening at the Revere cycle track in a special two in three event.

Both riders are showing signs of real speed and in their various meets in the open events at the beach oval they have finished neck and neck, which has tended to increase the confidence of each that he is his rival's master.

The other riders, as well as the fans have noticed, have been in order to settle the matter for the time being at least Manager Butler has arranged the special match race.

In addition to the sprint match Tiller, Corey and Carnein will come together in a 30-mile motor-paced race and this should also prove attractive to the fans. The first two named are both old favorites while Corey, who recently returned from abroad, is out to show the home boys some of the speed with which he showed up the best riders in Europe.

The regular card of amateur and professional events will be run off as usual.

This Day in Our History—June 14, 1919

THIS is the anniversary of the death in 1801 of Benedict Arnold, the American traitor, whose name has stood for infamy for more than a hundred years. Arnold, who tried to deliver West Point to the British, lived a miserable existence in England, despised alike by the nation he had sought to betray and the nation that had bought him.

Effects of a Meat Diet

THE wheat-eating Carthaginians were no match for the pork-eating Romans; the goat-eating Greeks easily overcame the herbivorous Persians; while the beef-eaters of England have often proved their bravery. Yet the British army contains no better soldiers than the Scottish and Irish, to whom meat was long a luxury.

When a Girl Marries

Anne Gets an Inkling of Evvy Mason's Malicious Nature

By Ann Lisle

CHAPTER CXXX

Copyright, 1919, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

AT the "Salt Water" celebration dinner not a single thing happened as I had expected, and a great many things occurred which I could certainly never have anticipated.

Of course I had thought that I would sit next to Jim at the table, and that he and Tom Mason as hosts, would have lead and foot. But it didn't work out that way mathematically, for I was on opposite ends of the table and between us stretched a vast space.

At Jim's right hand sat Doris West, as flashing a beauty as I had remembered her. Then came her friend, Fred Mayer, with Phoebe Lewis on his right. Dick West, who sat [illegible]

An [illegible] party it seemed to me [illegible] dated. It was [illegible] glances at Jim [illegible] batters of [illegible] even on Mr. Fish [illegible] the table I [illegible] self whole-heartedly to entertain Jim's attention from Miss West to herself. Virginia and Sheldon seemed to be having a sort of private party of their own, which left from ours by their indifference.

Tom Mason in Possession

Tom Mason took possession of me in a well bred [illegible] seemed no [illegible] I turned from him to Doris West's brother—whose resemblance to his sister translated itself into the dark, asking a [illegible] Indian type instead of [illegible] pelling yet [illegible] ern beauty. There [illegible] little heart-shaped face [illegible] tle eyes [illegible] mouth a crimson [illegible] tain hardness in [illegible] trembling lip, [illegible] was leaning toward Dick West with a challenge in every line of her eager face and a frown lurking every now and then in her throat. A Phoebe transformed! What had done it?

While the dinner dragged through to the demi-tasse, I gave half my mind to holding Tom Mason at his proper distance without quite snubbing the man to whom my grateful husband was drinking so many toasts. But the other half was very busy with Jessie and Affect. What had happened to change Neal's little Phoebe into this girl I scarcely knew?

This wasn't "Neal's little Phoebe" at all, but some brilliant changeling, who rose [illegible] at the [illegible] ing her cheek [illegible] a gesture of command, cried:

"Friends—[illegible] This get-together party must needs pretty close to the Western disaster of the actual merits of [illegible] Oil." "Better order a couple of taxis from the starter, Jim," suggested Virginia with more animation than I had ever seen her show. "You know there never are any extra ones here."

"All right, Jeanie," Jim agreed. "Tom and I will attend to them while you girls are powdering your noses."

I CAN'T WAIT, MY TIME'S TOO VALAIBLE"!

Stocks Weak in Boston and New York and Affected by Money Conditions and Week-End Hesitation

STEEL COMMON ENDS WITH GAIN

Several Coppers Advance in Final Transactions: Trading Active

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Stocks were weak in New York at the close of the market, but prices finished above the morning's lowest level. There was improvement in late trading in certain departments of the list, including Steels and coppers. Declines did not average large at the end and a number of issues which had been decidedly weak at times during the forenoon had recovered most of their losses. Trading was active for a short session.

U. S. Steel closed with a gain of ⅜ at 106¼, after selling as low as 104⅝ and as high as 106⅝. Gains by coppers included Anaconda 1¾ to 71⅝, Chino ¼ at 42¼; Kennecott ⅛ at 33½; Inspiration ⅝ at 58⅝, Utah Copper 1⅛ at 90 and Chile ⅛ at 26. At the close Corn Products had advanced ⅜ to 64⅛; Crucible ⅝ to 80; Marine common 1⅜ to 45⅜; American Smelting ⅞ to 91⅞; Central Leather ⅝ to 88⅝; Baldwin ⅝ to 93½; Atlantic Gulf ⅛ to 172¼, Chandler 3 at 202 and Maxwell 1¾ at 46⅛.

Among declines were Industrial Alcohol 1¼, Studebaker Stores 1¼ at 152⅜, Texas Co. 2¼ at 260½, Pan-American 1¼ at 91, Royal Dutch of New York 2⅝ at 108⅝, Mexican Petroleum 1 at 177, Marine preferred ⅝ at 116⅝, Studebaker 1⅝ at 59¾, General Motors 2¼ at 209, Woolen common 1⅛ at 111⅝, Reading ⅜ at 86⅝ and Southern Pacific ¼ at 105¾.

There was considerable covering near the end of the session.

Total sales of stocks today were 863,600 shares; bonds, $6,222,000. Total sales of stocks for the week were 2,200,900 shares; bonds, $68,228,000.

MARKET IRREGULAR AT START.

The list was irregular as to price changes at the opening, although a majority of active issues were lower on initial transactions. But stocks were in smaller supply than for several days, and there was slight improvement for a few minutes. The market was rather active during the first hour, but recessions did not quite large. The money situation indicated slightly more trading facilities, and there was more than the usual week-end cessation over commitments. It is said that the borrowing demand for stocks is large and many operators are of the opinion that the market is heavily oversold. This led to predictions of a sharp rally soon and that the upward movement would be resumed next week. The loan expansion revealed by the one of a week ago was the one reason for the recent tightening of money.

LIQUIDATION EXTENSIVE.

Liquidation has been on an extensive scale during the week and it is an open question how much further it will go. In some quarters it is thought that stocks must be deflated considerably before unsafe conditions are remedied. The present reaction is what has been expected in most conservative investors for some time and has not been as drastic as yet as was generally looked for in such quarters. Factors which contributed to the weakness are the labor uncertainties, labor troubles and a hardening of money. But business is improving, the crop outlook is most encouraging and it is conceded by almost everybody that fundamentals should cause no worry.

Anthracite Is Plentiful

The high prices asked householders and others for anthracite is not due to a scarcity of this kind of coal. A recent bureau bulletin says approximately 58,000 tons are stored at washeries along the Schuylkill River alone. Pennsylvania buckwheat is held known in the trade as "steam sizes."

New York Bank Statement

New York, June 14.—The weekly statement of clearing house banks shows in regard to actual condition a decrease of $10,131,210 in surplus reserve. The average condition decrease was $14,851,220. LESS TRADING AND LOWER PRICES

Boston Market Lacks Interesting Features on a General Decline

The Boston market was weak during the morning. At the opening there was no attempt to rally and the remainder of the session there was no rally of importance. Fluctuations were small and without much significance. The market reflected uncertainty over the week-end and during the afternoon was of less volume than for days.

United Fruit was active and receded more than a point after opening fractionally higher. On one sale Warren Brothers declined a couple of points, and the same was true of Edison. Also, American International was another weak issue. Allouez receded a point and American Zinc a point before the close. Coppers as a class receded fractionally.

United Shoe was one of the active stocks, and varied from a small gain to a small loss, closing unchanged off. There was no feature of especial interest about local trading.

COPPER PRICE FIRM AND MARKET QUIET

Little more can be said about the copper market at the week-end than the price is firm and the market quiet. Since largest selling interests have asked at least 18 cents pound for the August delivery there has been less business booked.

Quotations for June are generally 17¾ cents and for July 17⅝.

Platinum Mining Company

The new platinum mining company which Canadian and British interests control is known as the South American Gold and Platinum Company, and it has acquired 10,000 acres of land and fifty miles of river bottom and claim in the Republic of Colombia. The holdings have been acquired partly from a British company which has been producing gold and platinum from the property.

Bethlehem Steel Rumor Denied

MANY VESSELS USING CAPE CANAL
Has More Traffic Than the Famous Panama Waterway

The importance of the Cape Cod Canal as a waterway has had more significance to most people since it has been under Federal control. It is nearly a year since the Railroad Administration took it over for transportation reasons during the war. The date of that change in management was July 25 last. The government has expended $400,000 on the canal within a year, a large part of the money going for dredging. The ditch has been deepened by the government from a navigable depth of 18 feet to the full charter depth of 25 feet, but War Department officials fear that if it is returned to private ownership it will not be kept clear of shoals and that navigation for deep draft vessels will be impeded or become impossible.

The War Department regards the canal as a necessary adjunct for New England coast safety and believing it for public interest that Federal control should continue without interruption. Secretary of War Baker has recommended that Congress legislate for that result and appropriate $18,000,000. If private owners get the canal they will demand $25,000,000 spent upon it by the government, but doubts are expressed as to whether they will have financial ability to maintain it in the future its present value as a coastwise navigation route.

Few people realize that more vessels pass through the Cape Cod canal than traverse the waters of the Panama canal. For the nine months ended by April this year 4,218 vessels used the Cape waterway to 1,521 using the one at Panama. A local financial bulletin has printed the following table showing the comparative commerce through the two waterways by months for the period mentioned:

CAPE COD CANAL.

McAdoo Tells How Railroads, Under Government Operation, Won the War in a Crisis

William G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury and Director-General of the Railroads during the critical period of the war, has at last been nagged out of his silence by the unjust insinuations of the railroad propaganda now in full operation throughout this country.

Mr. McAdoo can no longer bear the false and unjust statements of the men conducting this great propaganda to force a return of the railroads to the control of the high finance which was disastrous to the country, the shippers and to the stockholders alike.

Mr. McAdoo's statement is most interesting and instructive and indeed startling. Gradually we are beginning to learn how close to defeat the cause of the allies was and how by a hair's breadth Germany lost the victory. Mr. McAdoo says:

"Now that the war is practically ended, because peace is almost in sight, there is no reason why some facts should not now be told which it would manifestly have been unwise to disclose during the actual hostilities.

"I should like to give you a little inside story of the way in which the United States Railroad Administration saved the Allies in a desperate emergency and made certain the ultimate defeat of Germany. THIS COULD NOT HAVE BEEN DONE IF THE RAILROADS HAD BEEN UNDER PRIVATE CONTROL, and it is an interesting commentary upon the wild assertions of those captious critics who have been flooding the country with vociferous charges that the control of the railroads by the Government has been a failure."

Mr. McAdoo then proceeds to tell the story of a most dramatic crisis.

Private management had utterly failed to make the railroads render an adequate service in the war exigencies of the day.

On the 27th of December, 1917, the Government took control of them.

Immediately after that the Ambassadors from Great Britain, France and Italy submitted to the Government a communication from the Prime Ministers of those countries in which a solemn prayer was made to the American Government to correct a situation which spelled defeat and disaster if it could not be immediately corrected.

This appeal from the Prime Ministers of the allies stated that in December, 1917, America fell short more than 500,000 tons of the amount of wheat promised to the allies, and that on the first of January she was 900,000 tons behind the absolutely necessary amount of wheat which she must furnish.

Our farmers responding to the appeal of the nation had produced the wheat.

The ships were ready to take it, BUT THE RAILROADS UNDER PRIVATE MANAGEMENT HAD FAILED TO TRANSPORT IT FROM THE FIELDS TO THE DOCKS.

The chiefs of our associated nations in the struggle against Germany warned us as solemnly as men facing destruction can speak that unless we put wheat immediately into France and Italy in the quantities required, the war was lost.

They told us that it had been necessary to reduce the amount of rations furnished to the Italian soldiers twice, and to the French soldiers once, and that the civil population of France and Italy were hungry, and that everything else in the world must be set aside, even though the shipments of arms and munitions be held in abeyance, until wheat, the staff of life, could be transported to the hungry soldiers and populations of France and Italy.

Mr. McAdoo points out that the great trouble was that the railroads, under private management, in order to make their roads pay, held the empty cars at the eastern ports until they could be loaded with freight going West.

This practice, while bringing profit to the railroads, occasioned a fatal delay, both at the eastern points, where they were waiting to be loaded, and again at their western destination, where they had to wait to be unloaded.

The Government took control of the railroads and abolished this practice immediately. Just as soon as a freight train was unloaded of its wheat in New York, Boston, Baltimore, New Orleans, or wherever the ships were waiting, those freight cars were hurried back West for more wheat without waiting to load them with goods for western shipment. Thus the whole course of commerce in America was interrupted for two months, and on the 15th day of March, 1918, just two months and two weeks after this cry of despair from the Prime Ministers of France, Great Britain and Italy was received, Director-General McAdoo was able to announce that the American railroads, UNDER GOVERNMENT OPERATION, were delivering grain to the ships faster than the ships could receive it. Mr. McAdoo continues:

"This successful operation under Government control of the railroads saved the war for America and the Allies, because a failure to meet the food crisis at that time would have been an irretrievable disaster. This great operation was carried through regardless of cost.

"To haul empty cars is not remunerative, and that is why every railroad man abhors the unnecessary handling of an empty car. And yet this incident illustrates what had to be repeatedly done to win the victory over the Kaiser regardless of cost.

"If it had not been for war emergencies of this character, which had to be met and which it was the purpose of Federal control to meet, the $200,000,000 deficit in railroad operations for the year 1918 could have been turned into a surplus. The deficit was created in part by the expense of handling the empty box cars. Wasn't it worth the whole $200,000,000 deficit to save the Allied cause?

"At the time the armistice was signed the expenditures of the Government were $60,000,000 a day. The $200,000,000 deficit represents only three and one-third day's expenditures of the Government, and yet I venture to say that the $200,000,000 expended on railroad operation produced greater results than any like amount of money expended by the Government in the entire period of the war.

"This great feat was so quietly performed that the American people did not know that practically the entire commerce of the Eastern and Northwestern regions, with the exception of food and fuel and less than carload merchandise, print paper and paper pulp, had been arrested for a period of more than a fortnight. It may be said to the enduring credit of the American people that the inconveniences of that time were borne with a fortitude, patience and patriotism which are at once the credit and the glory of our democracy."

Now, is there anything in the world meaner than the lying propaganda being spread abroad in this country that Government operation of the railroads has failed because the railroads did not pay their expenses during the war under Government operation? These speculators and railroad wreckers, who want to get back the railroads for the purpose of juggling with them, and for the princely power that goes with this control, know perfectly well the reason why the railroads did not pay their expenses under Government operation.

Did the army pay its expenses under Government operation?

Did the navy pay its expenses under Government operation?

Does a war pay its costs?

As Mr. McAdoo says, the entire loss which the railroads suffered in throwing aside all thought of profit and meeting this tremendous crisis was only equal to three and one-third days' expense of the Government.

It is a wonderful showing of Government operation. The British and French railroad experts all express their admiration for the achievements of the Government in handling the railroads. Indeed, one of the conspicuous successes of the war in any country was the handling by our Government of the railroads.

At the same time we paid the stockholders dividends, which they knew they were going to get, and they were able to rest in comfort and security for the first time in twenty years, for they were certain that there would be no exploitation, no stock-gambling raids, no contrived bankruptcies and receiverships for reorganization profits for a few private syndicates and their satellites.

The proposal to return the railroads to private control is merely convincing evidence that the rascally speculators who once had the railroads in their grip now have the Democratic party in their grip.

There has been no such shameful surrender to predatory plutocracy in the whole history of this country as the so-called Democratic party has shown in its abandonment of the Democratic principle of Public Ownership.

But since the Democratic party has sacrificed its virtue for the bribe of campaign contributions, and has decided to rival the Republican party in the service of the special interests, it is certainly time that a new party should be formed to represent the honest citizenship of this country and to protect our people and our Government from the aggressions of predatory wealth.

THE TALE OF THE TANK

By ARTHUR CHAPMAN

THIS is the story of the tank picked up by Farmer Boggs
To plow his land and haul his crops and fetch and carry logs—
A tank he bought of Uncle Sam, with scars along its side,
Showing where Germans sought in vain to penetrate its hide.

JUST like the ducks on Boggs' place, the big tank waddled out
To make itself of peace-time use—nobody had a doubt
That it would pull the shining plows and rakes and mowers and drags
As uncomplainingly and long as any score of nags.

BUT on the first day of its toil adown the scented breeze
There came the sound of dynamite—someone was blasting trees—
And thereupon a quiver shook the craft from stem to turn,
And instantly it speeded up, nor would it halt or turn.

IT charged right through the barn and brought that structure huge to earth
A chicken house and cattle shed it made of little worth;
It plowed into the dwelling house, where shrieks of fright arose,
And bore, along its awkward way, the kitchen on its nose.

THE windmill toppled to the ground, the dairy house went flat;
The cornerib fell—the granary resembled a cocked hat.
The smokehouse was the only thing left whole upon the scene,
And that was just because the tank ran out of gasoline.

AND when the farmer viewed the wreck he raised his calloused hand;
"I swear," he said, "that nevermore a tank shall till my land
Unless that tank has been peace broke—is gentle and refined—
And is aware that months ago an armistice was signed!"

A CHAIR IS SOMETHING TO SIT ON

In furnishing your home as you follow the plan of buying something cheap, "which will last till you can get something better," or do you buy with the idea of getting something good and substantial—serviceable, to last many years?

Is your idea to please those who come to your home occasionally or to add to the comfort of each and every member of your family?

Thinking a moment, don't you see how foolish it is to try to please others instead of those directly concerned?

Your home nest should express the needs and gratified comforts of the individuals who comprise the home.

Your home should contain nothing too fine for use.

If you must be on close and constant guard lest damage come to your possessions you are wasting a lot of time playing policeman to a lot of inanimate objects, and even your own family can hardly forgive you for the many tantrums you have had trying to save the furniture or the bric-a-brac.

Be sensible; consult the needs of your household, the comfort of its members, and buy accordingly. One really comfortable chair is worth a dozen spindle-legged things which are too fragile for real, healthy, hearty folk.

Ireland Sowed Loyalty and Reaped Despair

GEORGE CREEL in Tomorrow's Sunday Advertiser Continues His Arraignment of England in His Brilliant Discussion of "The Case of Ireland vs. England"

"The glory of Ireland and the shame of England—history will so render judgment on the actions of these two in that tremendous moment when Europe rallied to beat back the German horror," says GEORGE CREEL, in the third exclusive article of the powerful series on THE WRONGS OF IRELAND which he is contributing to the Sunday Advertiser. "In a speech sublimely eloquent, John Redmond pledged his country and his countrymen to the British cause. Possessed of full ability to dictate terms, he did not stoop to barter.

"Holding the balance of power with his eighty Irish votes, HE COULD HAVE OVERTHROWN THE LIBERAL MINISTRY, PLUNGING ENGLAND INTO CONFUSION AND RUIN, but he scorned to haggle. Instead of crying, 'Let me see Home Rule in operation before I move a hand or say a word,' Redmond made instant decision out of his own honor and high faith.

"Looking beyond Ireland he saw civilization in the balance; sweeping aside seven centuries of oppression and a year of betrayal, he flung himself, his party and his motherland upon the honesty and the justice of England in one magnificent gesture. Dragging his party leaders with him, he campaigned for recruits in Ireland, and sent his own brother to a grave in France."

And WHAT WAS IRELAND'S REWARD? Nothing but BITTERNESS, says Creel. "On September 18 Mr. Asquith sent to the King the Home Rule bill he had been holding back for six weeks. With it, for signature with the same pen, he sent a suspensory bill, passed in four days, POSTPONING THE OPERATION OF THE HOME RULE BILL INDEFINITELY." And all that followed, as Mr. Creel calmly and dispassionately reviews the case against England, is equally to the latter's SHAME. Ireland was persecuted at home, while her sons abroad fought like lions under the British flag.

Earl Grey declared that "Ireland was the one bright spot in the darkness of war"; but there was the darkness of despair in many an Irish heart when the Ulster rebels were made Cabinet ministers, though the Sinn Feiners were shot down by firing squads; and 50,000 English troops kept martial law in Irish towns, while Irish volunteers in the King's army were forbidden to carry green flags made by their own mothers, but had to fight under Ulstermen and Protestant Unionists. . . . And in describing the "wave of fury" that followed on all this, Mr. Creel does not hesitate to say that ULSTER ACTED AS THE KAISER'S AGENT and "the Kaiser and his advisers in Berlin WERE DEPENDING ON ULSTER TO TIE THE HANDS OF ENGLAND."

SIX SOLUTIONS FOR the problem of THE HIGH COST OF LIVING are urged by JOHN JACOB ROGERS, Congressman from Lowell. He would:

1. Eliminate by government regulation all speculation in foodstuffs;
2. Jail profiteers;
3. Improve and make adequate the distribution of foodstuffs;
4. Eliminate price-fixing—even by the Government; as it always tends to raise prices;
5. Regulation of cold storage systems to benefit ultimate consumer.
6. Retain daylight saving.

Congressman Rogers has given this matter much careful and scientific study, and his discussion tomorrow is not only timely, but convincing.

After the League of Nations—an INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE to solve the WORLD'S ECONOMIC PROBLEMS! That is the remedy of economic ills suggested by George W. Perkins. "There is another issue quite as immediately important as peace and the League of Nations which we hope will bring about International and lasting peace," he says, "and that is a LEAGUE OF CLASSES, getting together and creating a better understanding between capital and labor—a league of classes to discuss the great new, economic, fundamental principles that have made the vast changes in our business fabric during these few years of the war."

How to "camouflage" so as to appear beautiful though fat and faulty-faced!

"The Red Lady," Katherine Newlin Burt's new mystery romance, is as strange a thriller as "The Fall of the House of Usher." Its mystery deepens, tomorrow! Well told—a gem of its kind.

AND the Comics, of course! "Father" tries his own hand at a rolling-pin. Not to mention a few bricks. And is quite successful. (It must have been "Mother's" day out! He was without a rival.)

Ye TOWN GOSSIP

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

By K. C. B.

HERE I was.
LIVING IN the country.
AND GETTING all excited.
ABOUT THE lovely birds.
AND BUYING them houses.
AND NAILING them up.
AND WRITING about them.
AND TALKING about them.
AND GETTING letters about them
AND BUILDING them baths.
AND BELIEVING in them.
AND ALL at once.
THEY START doing things.
THAT YOU'D never believe.
A LITTLE bird would do.
AND JUST this morning.
ON THE day I write this.
THE TWO little wrens.
WE TOOK into our home.
AND WHO had already.
BECOME EMBROILED.
IN A domestic scandal.
SAT AROUND a while.
AND DID a lot of chirping.
ON THE branch of a tree.
AND THEN flew over.
TO THE corner of the porch.
WHERE WE'D rented a place.
TO A couple of robins.
WHO HAD laid their eggs.
AND HAD guarded them carefully.
AND JUST for a moment.
HAD GONE away.
TO GET something to eat.
AND THE bad little wrens.
AS I'VE already said.
FLEW OVER to the place.
WHERE THE robins' eggs were.
AND BEFORE I could climb.
TO THE edge of the veranda.
AND THEY took all of the eggs.
IN THE robins' nest.
AND SHOVED them out.
SO THEY fell right down.
ON THE floor of the veranda.
AND WERE crushed to death.
AND HAVING performed.
THIS FOUL deed.
THE BAD little wrens.
FLEW BACK to the house.
THAT I had given them.
ON THE same veranda.
AND THE mother wren.
WENT INTO the house.
TO HER own little eggs.
WHILE THE husband wren.
FLEW AWAY somewhere.
SO THE robins wouldn't know.
AND THE robins came back.
AND THEY'RE out there now.
WHILE I'M writing this.
AND I think they're crying.
BECAUSE THE way they chirp.
IT SOUNDS awfully sad.
AND THEY'VE wasted two weeks.
AND THERE'S nothing to do.
BUT TO start in again.
AND I don't know what to do.
ABOUT THE way the wrens are acting.
AND I'D like to dispossess them.
BUT I can't do that.
WHILE THEY'RE hatching out their eggs.
BUT I'M often them for life.
THE MURDERING little things.

I THANK you.
